France Gets an Island
Joe, the Baker, Leaves
Gandhi's Sky-Writing
A Wise German

By Arthur Brisbane

A DECISION, rendered by the Italian King, Emanuel, in favor of France, against Mexico, may promote better Italian-French feeling.

Lost in the Pacific ocean, 870 miles west of the Mexican coast, is a little island, called by the English, Clipperton Rock, and by the Mexicans, La Isla de la Passion, "The Isle of the Passion." France and Mexico claimed it, and agreed to let King Victor Emanuel arbitrate. Now, 22 years later, Emanuel gives the island to France, ordering Mexicans to withdraw their little body of soldiers.

It is a low rock, not able to support human life. But it has a lagoon in the center, and IN WAR, IT MIGHT BE IMPORTANT AS A BASE FOR SEA-PLANES.

France knows what flying will mean in the next war, and neglects nothing connected with it. That is more than you can say for the United States, which doesn't know what flying will mean, and neglects many things connected with it.

"Joe the Baker," known to his mother and early friends as Joseph Catania, is dead. With his mouth shut tight, refusing to tell who shot him, he struggled against a flock of machine gun bullets and succumbed, eliminated because he interfered with bootlegging in the territory of "Dutch" Schultz, the "Bronx Beer Baron."

Thus far, not one of many gangsters shot down has told police who killed him, although a majority of them knew. Perhaps they thought they would not die.

"Joe the Baker" was one of the New York gangsters that had the honor of entertaining a distinguished New York city judge at a welcome home dinner.

Gandhi tells 100,000 listeners that victory for his "Holy Crusade" to free India "is written in the skies if we follow the path of truth and non-violence."

Few victories have been won by non-violence. In fact, no nation ever won freedom except by fighting for it.

In the opinion of at least 200,000,000 Hindus, a successful "holy crusade" would include the right to restore child marriage, without restriction, the burning of widows, and a system of severance for animal life, now especially, that allows the miserable animals, when they get old, to die of hunger, because no one has the right to kill them.

Germany possesses an appallingly wise person named Dr. George Joos, professor of theoretical physics at Jena.

The wavelength of a ray of light is from one twenty-five thousandth to one fifty thousandth of an inch in length. The marvelous Joos can measure the one-thousandth part of that.

This enables him to prove that there is no "ether drift" and that the speed of light is absolute.

In some mysterious way, Dr. Joos confirms Einstein's theories. Sometimes you are sorry you cannot understand all that, and sometimes you thank heaven for your ignorance.

Copper yesterday dropped to nine and a half cents a pound, less than the cost of production in all but a few mines. Silver has fallen so far that it recalls to silver men the story of the cloak and suit man, who said:

"There is only one price in my place."

"What is that?" some one asked.

"Anything you offer me."

Many, outside of silver production, know how the cloak and suit man felt.

Previous to 1931 the Bible had been translated into 886 languages. Now the 887th is added, that of the Indian aborigines of Guatemala.

This language, called the "Mam" tongue, dates from the ancient Mayas and is hard to learn.

One verse, from St. John, according to the Rev. Dr. North would read:

"Kun ietsun ju uiakj tanmi Dios quij xjal."

The word "Dios" in that text, evidently is borrowed from the Spanish. The Guatemalan Indians perhaps having no name for the Christian kind of God.

Guatemala Indians, like the North American Indians, when Catholic fathers first visited them long ago, will be interested principally in the biblical descriptions of fights and victories. The destruction of the walls of Jericho and the command, "Slay and spare not," including men, women, and children, will appeal to their primitive religious instinct.

But some undoubtedly will read the Sermon on the Mount, which will do them good, if they know what it is about.

BEAUTY BEATS UP BUSTER KEATON

Claws and Bruises Film Star in His Dressing Room in Battle Over Money

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 5 (INS) For refusing to satisfy her alleged threatening demands for $25,000, Buster Keaton, motion picture comedian, was severely beaten and his dressing room wrecked by a former film beauty, Kathleen Key, he admitted today.

Recently rescued Keaton, his clothes torn, his face and hands scarred and bruised.

The studio police chief overpowered Miss Key and took her to the Culver City police station. She was released, however, without any charge being placed against her.

Miss Key treated the incident as "joke" and told interviewers to ask Mr. Keaton what happened.

TELLS OF $500 BET

Keaton declared: "She wrecked my dressing room. She clawed and scratched and tore my clothes."

Keaton said he had bet Miss Key $500 she could not reduce 20 pounds in weight in 10 days, promising her a part in motion pictures if she could "make weight." Miss Key accepted the wager, but lost only six pounds in the stipulated time. Keaton said he told her: "Well, you tried hard enough. Here's the $500 check."

"This check," Keaton charged, "was used over my head to collect money. Gossip reached studio officials. Miss Key demanded $4000 to pay debts and $1000 for a ticket to China. I agreed to give her $5000 just so the gossip would be stopped. When I offered her the check she demanded $20,000, and I tore up the $5000 check in her presence and resolved not to give her another cent."

MANHANDLED HIM

"Then the fight started. She manhandled me something awful," Keaton declared.

Cliff "Ukelele Ike" Edwards was one of the witnesses to the first part of the fight, Keaton said.

Keaton is one of the leading film comedians. He was married several years ago to Natalie Talmadge, youngest sister of Norma and Constance Talmadge. They have two children.

Los Angeles Dodges Storms in Bahamas

Washington, Feb. 5 (AP)—Heading south for Guantanamo, Cuba, the Navy dirigible Los Angeles early today ran into stormy weather off the coast of Florida.

A message to the Navy Department said the ship had been forced to circle thunderstorms above the Bahama Islands. At 8 o'clock today the airship was 65 miles north of the Bahama Islands, off Florida, and 567 miles from its destination.

Bay State Coast Guard Is Drowned

Charleston, S. C., Feb. 5 (AP)—William Roland Gray of Manchester, Mass., first class seaman, U. S. Coast Guard, was drowned in the harbor here today when he fell from an anchored picket boat. His body has not been recovered.

BOMBING PLOT FOILED IN ROME

Rome, Feb. 5 (AP)—Police announced today that they had frustrated, with the arrest of Michele Schirru, a plan for a series of acts of political terrorism.

Schirru's arrest Tuesday night after a gun fight gave rise to rumors that there had been an attempt, or a plan for an attempt, on the life of Premier Mussolini. This was vigorously denied by the authorities.

According to the police version, Schirru drew a revolver while being searched at the police station. He fired a number of shots which wounded three policemen, one seriously, and then turned the gun on himself, inflicting a severe wound in the mouth.

A search of two rooms which Schirru had occupied in different hotels revealed two high explosive bombs arranged for use either as time or percussion explosives, police asserted.

Schirru, who was born in Sardinia, was said to have been in the United States since March, 1930.

Roosevelt Seeks New Law on Judges

Albany, Feb 5 (AP)—Legislation to prevent judges from engaging in business was urged today by Gov. Roosevelt in a special message to the Legislature.

"The question of judges engaging in business," said the message, "has been recently brought into prominence in the investigation being conducted by the appellate division of the Supreme Court, first department. I believe it is a matter of importance throughout the state, and urge that speedy steps should be taken to correct whatever abuses have arisen."

SEVEN INJURED, 25 SHAKEN UP IN BUS CRASH

Driver and Passengers From Boston Hurt in a Collision at Marlboro

Seven persons were injured and 25 others were badly shaken when a bus bound from Boston to New York crashed head-on into a large motor truck at a curve in East Main st., Marlboro, today.

Joseph Charleston of Beckton, driver of the bus, and six passengers were rushed to Marlboro Hospital suffering from injuries and cuts by flying glass.

Harold G. Sullivan, driver of the truck, escaped injury.

Charleston told the police that he was traveling at 30 miles an hour when he rounded the curve. Two machines parked on the curve forced him to swing wide, he said, and the bus crashed into the truck coming from the opposite direction.

The passengers taken to the hospital were:

GRANDOLFI, MRS. MARY, 60 Everett st., East Boston.

GRANDOLFI, CARMEN, her son, 18.

ROSEN, MRS. ESTHER, 20 Hosmer st., Mattapan.

ROSEN, IRVING, her son, 12.

GLASS, MRS. REGINA, 836 Tremont st., Boston.

PRICE, ERIC, 10 Divinity Hall Cambridge, Harvard student, son of Charles D. Price of Bristol, England.

Gen. Edwards Has Comfortable Night

The condition of Maj.-Gen. Clarence R. Edwards remained the same today, according to officials of the Phillips House, Massachusetts General Hospital.

He spent a more comfortable night than on any since his operation, but was unable to take the amount of nourishment his doctors desire. Dr. Horatio Rogers remained at Phillips House throughout the night. Col. Hyatt, a close friend of Gen Edwards, also remained at the hospital until an early hour today.

Albert's Brandy for Injured Woman

Murren, Switzerland, Feb 5 (INS)—Further proof of the democracy of the Belgian monarch was shown when popular King Albert proffered his flask of brandy to a young sportswoman.

Like all good mountaineers, the king carries a little bottle in case of accident. He knelt down in the snow beside a novice who had sprained her ankle and needed the cognac he offered her.

COMPROMISE ON RELIEF BILL IS SENT HOOVER

Action of President Is Awaited on Measure Approved by the Party Leaders

Washington, Feb. 5 (AP)—An agreement on the relief controversy acceptable to both Republican and Democratic leaders in the Senate was forwarded today to President Hoover.

What attitude the President will take remains to be seen. He has taken an adamant position against making federal funds available to the Red Cross for relief purposes.

LIBERALIZES TERMS

The proposed cash fund addition of $25,000,000 to the drouth loan fund already appropriated by Congress to raise the ceiling of the disputed $45,000,000 added by the Senate to the Interior Department appropriation bill and aimed to be given to the Red Cross. House Republican leaders have opposed the fund vigorously.

The Democratic forces have announced the $25,000,000 and today's successful compromise would be some liberalization of the terms under which the additional $25,000,000 could be loaned to the drouth-stricken farmers.

The exact language of the agreement was withheld pending the outcome of the negotiations.

SOLUTION IS SEEN

The solution for the controversy, which is threatening an extra session of the new Congress in the spring, was pronounced acceptable by both Republican and Democratic leaders in the Senate.

Senators Watson of Indiana and McNary, of Oregon, the Republican chieftains, promptly dispatched the compromise suggestion to the White House, urging acceptance.

The House leadership still must be consulted, but the compromise was expected at the Capitol to result in quick action, with the March 4 adjournment of this session drawing closer.

The House today reduced to $2,000,000 the $3,000,000 Senate proposal for purchase of medical supplies for the drought sections.

Wales Nearing U. S. Soil in Canal Zone

S. S. Oropesa, Feb. 5 (AP)—The steamer Oropesa, making good time through the Caribbean today with its royal passengers, the Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, was expected to touch American soil early Friday morning at Colon or San Cristobal in the Canal Zone.

Trouble Still Trails Her

COUNTESS MARGUERITE DE TAURINE of Fall River, formerly Mrs. Pearl Hussey Flanagan, who has been sued for $10,000 by John Hayes, New York, who claims he married her while unaware she had been wed before. The countess once planned a $23,000,000 school in France, but lost all her wealth in a series of law suits. She is well known as a radio singer. Her brother, Dr. Earle E. Hussey, is named in present suit.

$10,000 SUIT IS FACING HER

Taunton, Feb. 5—The financial difficulties of Countess Marguerite De Taurine of Fall River, formerly Mrs. Pearl Hussey Flanagan, were further increased today with the filing of a $10,000 suit in Taunton Superior Court by attorneys representing John J. Hayes of New York.

The papers, alleging fraud by the countess and her brother, Dr. Earle E. Hussey, also of Fall River declare that Hayes invested $7000 in the Chateau De Taurine school of education and fine arts in southern France, and also married the countess upon the impression that she was previously unmarried.

The funds, he charges, have been appropriated to their own uses by the defendants. The chateau, presented to the countess in 1928, carried with it the title. Attempts by the countess to found a school in the ancient chateau met with many reverses and involved her in several lawsuits. She was sued for divorce in 1928 by J. M. Flanagan of Wichita, Kan., undertaker. In recent years she has won fame as a radio singer.

4 Golfers Robbed at Gunpoint at 13th Tee

Miami, Fla., Feb. 5 (AP)—An unwanted hazard was encountered on Miami Country club links by F. W. Scutt and A. D. Elder of Jamaica, N. Y., and partners, James undisclosed. At the 13th tee a man appeared with a pistol and took $75 from the foursome. The man made them drive and then disappeared.

BOSTON POSTAL PROBE VOTED

Washington, Feb. 5 (AP)—The House postoffice committee today approved the Senate bill directing Postmaster General Brown to investigate the lease of the postoffice garage in Boston.

The bill directs attention to modifications made in the building during construction aside from the original specifications. Brown is directed to readjust rental and purchase options in accordance with these alterations by the contractor.

The committee amended the bill to provide that any readjustment in the rental of the garage should not exceed $1000 a year in addition to the present rent.

Byrd Plans Polar Expedition in 1932

Glen Falls, N. Y., Feb. 5 (AP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd will lead another expedition into the South Polar region in 1932, Lieut. Thomas S. Mulroy, chief engineer of the Byrd Antarctic expedition told the Glen Falls Kiwanis Club today.

Mulroy said Byrd has been making plans to remain in the Antarctic for two years. He will use the base at Little America and the airplanes left on the ice, the speaker said.

Bostwick Wins Race in England

Gatwick, Eng., Feb. 5 (AP)—Astride his own horse, Burglar, G. H. Bostwick, gentleman rider from the United States, won the two-mile handicap hurdle race for four-year-olds today.

Burglar was just a head in front of Mr. Ruddock's Assagance, with G. L. Poole's Velocity three lengths back in third place. The race was worth $750 and Burglar paid nine to four to win.

FOLEY SAYS HE'LL FIGHT MOVE TO GET BAIL

Ex-Raider Spends Forenoon in Charles St. Jail Reading Papers

Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle, chief prosecutor at the Garrett trial, was called from his home to the courthouse today when Charles H. McMasters, a member of the jury that reported a disagreement, appeared at the district attorney's office.

McMasters is understood to be one of the nine jurymen in favor of conviction.

He was accompanied to the district attorney's office by former Representative Thomas H. Wiland, a close friend, and when he said he wished to talk with Doyle, District Attorney Foley telephoned his assistant, who had planned to take the day off.

McMasters, who lives at 431 Frankfort st., East Boston, would not discuss the reason for his call while he waited for the Garrett prosecutor.

JURORS ARE TRAILED

It was also revealed that private detectives employed by Foley had seen two of the jurors, following their discharge, visit a Dover st. barbershop which has been under surveillance since the trial started early last month.

A third juror also visited this shop the detectives reported, after having gone to a place in Berkeley st., which also was being watched.

Dist. Atty. Foley would not comment upon the jury angle of the case.

He announced definitely that Oliver B. Garrett, his wife and Lillian E. Hatch would be retried on the conspiracy and other charges and that he will fight any move to have Garrett released from jail in the meantime.

FOLEY OPPOSES BAIL

"I will oppose bail in any amount," he said.

Motion to lift Garrett's default on th epension larceny indictment and motion to admit him to bail will be made in court tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock by his attorney, Herbert F. Callahan. Judge Harold Williams will probably hear them.

No date has been set for the new trial but it will likely be held in April. Judge David F. Dolan, sitting on the case when Garrett defaulted, and whose assignment to the trial Garrett gave as one reason for his flight, is expected back in Boston March 1, and may possibly be assigned to sit here.

Garrett, back in Charles st. jail, still under indictment on the charges on which he was on trial for more than four weeks, spent the morning reading all the newspapers.

About noon he was visited by His father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. George Garrett, who remained with him about an hour.

Garrett's wife was reported to be near collapse, in bed and under

GOODWIN HITS EMPLOYMENT OF ALIENS IN STATE HOSPITALS

HIGHER PAY URGED FOR DOCTORS

Fin. Com. Head Flays Methods Used by Dr. Kline at the State House Hearing

Further criticism of Dr. George M. Kline, State Commissioner of Mental Diseases, for employment of aliens in State institutions was made today by Frank A. Goodwin and others, who appeared before the Joint Legislative Committee on Public Service in favor of several bills prohibiting the employment of aliens in such institutions.

"If we can't get our own doctors as cheaply as those from Canada or Russia let us pay our own doctors more," said Mr. Goodwin, who said, further, there was a question in his mind if certain State officials had not violated the immigration laws in circularizing Canada for a senior assistant.

MEDICAL TRUST ACTIVE.

"Haven't we any men in Massachusetts qualified to fill that position? Why send to Kansas for one? Right here in Massachusetts in the Department of Mental Diseases of this state we have second assistants, and certainly there must be among them someone who is fit to fill the position of first assistant.

"Doing the investigation by the Finance Commission of conditions at Long Island I asked Mr. Maguire, 'Why hire people from Manitoba as head of this institution and assistant and he said they had to as it was recommended by the medical staff. They hired a man from Manitoba at $3500 and his wife at $2900, with found, for those places. The medical trust forced them in. The city of Boston officials had nothing to say about it.

Dr. Daunt, a woman physician, said:

"There is no promotion in the institutions controlled by the State Department of Mental Diseases. That can be proved by the records. This injustice and unfairness has been going on for the past ten years under Dr. Kline."

STAND OF DEPARTMENT

Dr. Winfred Oberholzer, assistant commissioner of State Department of Mental Diseases, said:

"Preference is now given by the department to citizens in employment. The department would object to the prohibition of aliens, if citizens are not available. It is true that a great many more girls from the Canadian Provinces take a fancy to nursing than do girls in the United States at times when there is no depression. As for advertising in the provinces, I am sure that no person in the department would be so unwise as to do that."

Dr. George H. Bigelow, State commissioner of public health, said that quality of service should determine the employment of skilled professional employes. He denied that aliens were being employed by his department in preference to citizens.

Four in Prison Fire Face Murder Charge

Columbus, O., Feb. 5 (AP)—County Prosecutor Donald Hosking said today he expects to seek at least four first degree murder indictments when the grand jury takes up an investigation next month of the Ohio Penitentiary fire which claimed 320 lives last April. Evidence involving convicts in a plot to burn one of the prison cell blocks so they might escape will be presented to the grand jury, the prosecutor indicated.

'Rajah of Jazz' Under Guard After Holdup

Chicago, Feb. 5 (INS)—Paul Ash, "Rajah of Jazz," today was provided with a police guard to prevent a repetition of the "shakedown" he said was imposed on him yesterday. Ash reported he paid over $50 in currency when two armed hoodlums met him at the stage door of a theater where he is playing.

AUTOS BURN IN CRASH; 6 HURT

Deerfield, Feb. 5 (AP)—Edgar H. Ward of Shelburne Falls was probably fatally injured and five others suffered serious injuries in the collision of a truck and a sedan at Cheapside bridge, over the Deerfield river, early today. Both automobiles caught fire after the crash.

The others injured are Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Pearson, 205 Magnolia st., Hartford, Ct.; Mr. and Mrs. William Tracy, 319 Franklin ave., Hartford, and Thomas Daley, Wells ave., East Hartford.

Ward, who was driving the truck, and the five occupants of the sedan were pulled from the burning wreckage by George Hosley of South Deerfield and Rodney Annis of Greenfield.

Mrs. Tracy sustained a possible fracture of the skull and burns Mrs. Pearson received burns about the legs and possible internal injuries and Pearson, Tracy and Daley had cuts about the head and minor burns.

Ward, who was pinned beneath his overturned truck, was critically burned about the body.

Country Club Famed in Cartoons Burns

New Rochelle, N. Y., Feb. 5 (AP)—The Wyngil Country Club, made famous by the late Clare Briggs in many of his golf cartoons, was destroyed by fire today with a loss of $75,000 to $100,000.

The club's new building was not endangered. The old structure was of frame stucco construction and 25 years old.

Two-Mile "Carpet" of Goldfish Seen

Washington, Feb. 5 (INS)—A two-mile "carpet" of half-inch goldfish was sighted recently off the coast of Lower California, the Navy Department revealed today.

The horde of fish gave the sea a reddish color for miles around. The second officer of the American steamer Solana reported to the navy's hydrographic office.

Autos Burned in Fall River Blaze

Fall River, Feb. 5—Fire of undetermined origin last night destroyed a 250-feet storage shed on the Old Windsor line dock and caused several blazes on one of houses of the New Haven railroad, owners of the Windsor property. A hundred of automobiles was also burned.

SENATE ORDERS OUSTER ACTION AGAINST SMITH

District Attorney Is Directed to Start Proceedings in Power Fight

Washington, Feb. 5 (INS)—The Senate today directed the district attorney of the District of Columbia to institute immediate ouster proceedings against George Otis Smith, chairman of the new Federal Power Commission.

The resolution directing the ouster was adopted in a desultory fashion, with only a handful of senators realizing the import of the vote. There were less than a score of senators on the floor when Vice-President Curtis put the resolution to a vote. To observers, it appeared that as many senators voted against it as favored it, but Curtis ruled the "ayes" had won.

The confusion was evidenced by Senator Shortridge (R.) of California, who demanded: "What is it we were voting on?" When other senators informed him he shrugged his shoulders and sat down.

The resolution instructed the district attorney to bring court action to throw Smith out of his post. This was the final step in a two months fight between the White House and Senate over the power commission's action in dismissing two veteran employes.

The fight started just before Christmas, after the Senate had confirmed the commission. Three of its members—Chairman Smith, Claude L. Draper and Marcel Garsaud—met and dismissed Charles A. Russell, solicitor, and William V. King, accountant, who had been active in fighting power companies.

HOOVER STANDS PAT.

This happened just after the Senate had recessed. On its return in the new year the Senate recalled the confirmations of all three members, but the White House announced they had been sworn into office and the President would not permit the Senate to discharge them.

Power Trust Tried to Punish Newspapers

Washington, Feb. 5 (AP)—W. J. Baldwin, former publicity director for the Alabama Power Company, testified today at a Federal Trade Commission hearing that he endeavored to persuade the Westinghouse Electric Company and the General Electric Company to curtail advertising in the "Thompson papers."

Baldwin, now publicity director for the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, said while connected with Alabama Power, said he tried to have the power concerns mentioned advertise in the Mobile Press.

The witness said he also directed advertising for the Alabama Power Company, Robert E. Healy, commission counsel, asked him if he did not keep advertising from Alabama papers considered unfriendly to the Alabama Power Company.

"I placed no advertising with papers that were unfair to the Alabama Power Company," Baldwin said. "There were about five dailies and three or four weeklies in the State that were unfair and consequently I gave them no advertising."

CANNON'S 1928 ACTIVITY TOLD

Washington, Feb. 5 (INS)—Documentary evidence relating to Bishop James Cannon, Jr., a stock speculation, his handling of funds in the anti-Smith campaign in 1928 and aspects of his private life was placed in the records of the hearing today in Vt. Vernon Place Methodist Church.

The bishop hobbled up the steps of the church before most of the members of the ecclesiastical "grand jury" had arrived. He seemed more chipper than usual, although frowning upon reporters.

Church authorities hope to conclude the hearing tomorrow or Saturday.

FAHEY AGAINST WAGE CUTS

Maintenance of the present wage scales in industry was urged by John H. Fahey, of Worcester, former president of the Massachusetts Chamber of Commerce, at a hearing today before the Joint Legislative Committee on Ways and Means.

Fahey was speaking in favor of Governor Ely's proposal for a $50,000,000 bond issue for new roads and buildings to relieve unemployment and stimulate business when the question of wages came up.

"Do you think that business would improve if labor came down so that business could go ahead on a lower cost basis?" asked Rep. Albert F. Bigelow of Brookline.

Fahey replied that there may be some cracks in which readjustments might be made, but that in the main life necessary to maintain the present wage with its high purchasing power.

Any attempt at liquidation of wages, he pointed out, would be followed by disturbances that would retard rather than improve conditions.

In supporting the bond issue program, Fahey argued that the proposal is sound and has been used by private business all over the country.

treatment of a physician. Her condition is said to have resulted from a combination of nervous strain and a cold.

"Florence is in a state bordering on nervous collapse. She cried most of the night," George Garrett said. "She needs four or five days' rest."

He said that if his son was admitted to bail he thought he could supply it if the amount was not excessive.

Mrs. Garrett and Miss Hatch retain their freedom under the bail already set in their cases. They will continue thus unless legal action affecting their bail is made.

The three defendants gained in every way by the trial. Three directed verdicts wiped out three entire indictments, on which the trio can never be tried again. A total of 306 counts in the seven indictments at the beginning of the trial is now reduced to 88. One defect warrant against Garrett was removed.

At present the case against the three defendants charges all three in one indictment with conspiracy. Garrett is charged in 80 counts with requesting and accepting gratuities; Mrs. Garrett is charged in two counts with aiding in the commission of a felony and Miss Hatch in 35 counts on the same charge.

JURORS WORN OUT

The dismissal of the jurors came at 5:12 p. m. after they had been summoned by Judge Keating. The "twelve good men and true" filed to their places in the court room the haggard faces revealing the intensity of their struggle.

Clerk William J. Prendible addressed Foreman Albert Fishel and citing the various counts asked if the jury had reached an agreement.

"We have not," replied Fishel in answer to the question on each count.

"Mr. Foreman," said Judge Keating "do you think that you and your fellow-jurors could reach an agreement if you were given further time for consideration?"

"From what I have listened to and from the discussions we have had, I am of the honest opinion that we will never come to an agreement," replied Fishel.

OLLIE DISPLEASED

Judge Keating then ordered Clerk Prendible to enter the disagreement in the records and dismissed the jury. It was noticeable that he did not thank the jury for their services, as is customary.

Garrett's face was breathed in smiles as the jurors filed from the room. Mrs. Garrett was pale and haggard and seemed on the point of collapse. Miss Hatch displayed no emotion.

Although jurors, when questioned stated they had agreed not to talk about their deliberations it was learned that bitter wrangling had gone on behind the locked doors of their quarters. Some 50 ballots were cast, and the final vote of the jury was said to be 9 to 3 for conviction. It had for a long time been 8 to 4, but one acquittal man had finally voted for conviction.

HINES FAVORS CUT IN VETS' ALLOWANCE

Would Reduce Disability Payments 75 P. C. While They Are in the Hospitals

Washington, Feb. 5 (AP)—A cut in the disability allowances of World War veterans while undergoing hospitalization at Government expense was proposed today by Veterans Administrator Hines.

Before the Senate finance committee he suggested this step to remove an "incentive" among temporarily disabled men to remain in government institutions too long.

The reduction would not apply to veterans already in hospitals or soldiers' homes, he said, but would be made effective on future cases.

The cut would remain in effect only during hospitalization, the normal payments being resumed upon discharge from the hospital.

75 PER CENT CUT

Hines proposed that allowances to single men with temporary service-connected disabilities, who are intitled to a maximum of $80 a month, be cut to $20, or 75 per cent, during hospitalization and that married men be cut to the same figure, with the balances going to their wives and children.

The same cut would be applied to non-service connected cases, allowances now being from $12 to $40 a month.

Hines pointed out that while these World War veterans receive full compensation allowances while in hospitals, Civil War veterans' compensation is cut by $25 and Spanish War veterans $22 during hospitalization.

WITNESSES ABSENT

A demand that the House investigation of proposals for cashing the soldiers' bonus be ended immediately was made when witnesses failed to appear at the outset of the day's hearings.

Representative Garner of Texas, the Democratic leader, charged "unnecessary delay" and Representative Crisp, Democrat, Georgia, asked that the hearings be ended as Chairman Hawley of the ways and means committee received no answer to his call for witnesses.

Ten minutes later, however, several members of the House arrived to testify. Representatives Howard of Nebraska and Hancock of North Carolina, Democrats and Christgau of Minnesota, Republican, joined in a plea for legislation to redeem the bonus certificates.

Fleishhacker, Grid Star, Is Errand Boy

New York, Feb. 5 (INS)—Following the fine old American tradition of "working his way through" from the ground up, Herbert Fleishhacker, Jr., former All-America football star whose father is one of the wealthiest bankers on the West Coast, has taken a job running errands for J. P. Morgan & Co. here.

The husky blond former Stanford fullback is sorting the Morgan mail and delivering securities and calling for stock at other brokerage houses.

Auto Dealer and His Aide 'Taken for Ride'

New York, Feb. 5 (AP)—Joseph do Combo, dealer in second-hand automobiles, and his hired man Alex Morrison, were "taken for a ride" today.

De Combo jumped out of the speeding car and one his three "hosts" fired the bullet grazing his neck. Police found Morrison's body an hour later in a ditch on Long Island. There were several bullets in his body.

Lady Cunard Reports Loss of $15,000 Bracelet

London, Feb. 5—Lady Cunard, the former Maude Burke of New York, has lost a $15,000 bracelet.

Lady Cunard

The former New Yorker told police of Scotland Yard she missed the valuable piece of jewelry while attending a West End theater a few nights ago. Lady Cunard is the wife of Sir Bache Cunard. She is the daughter of the late E. F. Burke. She married in 1893. When asked by Scotland Yard detectives whether the bracelet had been lost or stolen, she said she did not know.

Enrico Caruso, Jr., Plans to Follow Dad's Career

Los Angeles, Feb. 5—Enrico Caruso, Jr., recently told a newspaperman in Philadelphia that he couldn't sing, although he had been told by a number of persons that he could. Now the son of the famous tenor has changed his mind since then. It was reported here today that he hopes for a career like his father's.

Enrico Caruso

Young Caruso is married and lives with Adolfo de la Huerta, former President of Mexico. He is 26 and, according to his teacher, has a large chest and an artistic temperament like his father. He is very much like his father in many ways, it is said.

Jeritza Carries Book Fight Into Czechoslovakia

Vienna, Feb. 5—Maria Jeritza, opera singer, with her husband, Leopold Frederick Salvatore Baron Popper Depodirhey, ara still fighting the publication of the novel "Riff-Raff." They have now taken the fight into Czechoslovakia. The famous opera singer and her husband have petitioned a Bratislava court to suppress the publication of the book on the ground that it has pictured the singer's private life slanderously.

Maria Jritza

A suit for damages brought by Jeritza in Austria, where the book was recently barred, is awaiting decision. The author and the publisher are the defendants.

House Wets Make Clark Ruling Issue

Washington, Feb. 5 (INS)—Congressional wets may make an issue of the decision of Federal Judge William T. Clark, holding the Eighteenth Amendment invalid, by demanding that all future amendments be submitted to state conventions. When the House rules committee today was urged to permit a vote on the amendment to end "lame duck" sessions of Congress Representative O'Connor of New York raised the question. He insisted the amendment go to State conventions instead of Legislatures.

Boston Society Girls Rank High in Appraisal of Nation's Debutantes by 'Audacious'

GERALDINE ALLEN

GERALDINE ALLEN, daughter of the Gerald B. Allens of St. Louis, was rated by the merciless commentator of the Tatler and American Sketch as the most beautiful debutante in the country. Miss Caroline Cabot, daughter of the Boston Samuel

CAROLINE CABOT

Cabots, is the Boston deb surrounded by the most prestige, but she ranks third in that class, according to "Audacious," the honors of highest prestige goes to Miss Madeline Alexander of Pittsburgh. (Bachrach photo.)

MISS CAROLINE HUNNEWELL is the most beautiful debutante in Boston, according to "Audacious," but ranks only fourth in the nation's beauties. Miss Hunnewell is an ardent devotee of sports and one of her favorite pastimes is yachting. She is a popular member of the Junior League and is active in the theatricals of that organization. Above she is shown in fetching yachting garb during one of the many regattas in Marblehead.

TALK URGED AS A REMEDY FOR NON-SUPPORT

Talk and not jail better solves the problem of non-support, Judge Kathryn Sellers, woman judge of the domestic and juvenile courts in Washington, said today as she arrived in Boston to attend a banquet in the Hotel Statler tonight.

Judge Sellers has served 12 years settling problems of the family and child.

Her system, she said, is to have the erring husband brought before her for a conference with the result that a majority of the cases are settled without the need of prison bars.

"We talk the trouble over and, in a majority of cases, make an arrangement whereby the man furnishes support for his wife and family without going to jail," she said.

"I have found that a large majority of these men are not criminals, but simply men who have been unable to manage their own affairs."

She revealed that she has made a new custom of spending two evenings a week in her court in order that the man in the case may not lose a day's work in order to appear in court.

She frowned on reform schools as a means of correction for erring juveniles and at the same time gave her opinion that the boys and girls of today are no worse than at any time.

"I do not think that the young are as bad as they are often pictured," she said.

"It is best not to send children to reform school, the best of which are bad, but try to adjust minor infractions of the law outside of court."

WASHINGTON BANK RUN IS LAID TO REDS

Washington, Feb. 5 (AP)—A long line of depositors continued to withdraw their funds from the Perpetual Building Association today, despite expressions of financial stability from its officers and other capital bankers.

An hour or more before the opening time a line over a block long stretched away from the association's doors.

Francis E. Addison, president of the Security Savings & Commercial Bank, said Communists were responsible for reports about the building association.

A full-page advertisement in morning newspapers notified depositors that investigating bank officials had held "without qualification" that affairs of the association were "in proper order and that all funds are properly safeguarded."

BLAINE HINTS AT HUGE GIFTS TO G. O. P. FUND

Washington, Feb. 5 (AP)—Chairman Blaine of the Senate committee investigating postal leases today asked former Assistant Postmaster-GeneralGeneral John H. Bartless of Portsmouth, N. H., if he would be surprised to know the beneficiaries of postal leases had contributed over a million dollars "to the Coolidge and Hoover campaign funds."

Questioning the former postoffice official during the committee's investigation today, Blaine refused to make public the basis for his question. He said it would be developed later after the committee finished its question of Bartlett.

The latter did not answer the question.

Chairman Blaine asked Bartlett if Frank M. Stearns, close friend of former President Coolidge, had any part in negotiating postal leases.

"He didn't come to me," Bartlett replied.

"Didn't he come to the department?"

"I didn't observe him."

Bartlett said the question of the cancellation clause in the St. Paul lease had been a subject of discussion for many months.

Einstein Awaits a Peek at 'Mystery Box' of World

Pasadena, Cal., Feb. 5 (AP)—A group of famous scientists—astronomers and physicists—today was intent upon prying off the lid of a box of mystery in which they hope to find the secret of the universe.

Literally that is as Dr. Albert Einstein expressed it in an announcement yesterday that swept the old Einsteinian universe into oblivion and erected a new concept in its place.

No longer does Einstein believe in a symmetrical, spherical universe. Such a thing is not possible under his new unified field theory.

The evolution of the theory was explained in detail by Einstein, step by step, equation by equation, which resulted in the final equation embracing one general law that covers the phenomena of gravitation and electro-magnetism and offers a clue to the mystery of the structure of space.

TC LIFT BOX "COVER."

Then Einstein told his fellow scientists that he presented the unified field equation as a closed box, and that he knew of no methods of investigation by direct or physical experimental means of prying off the lid to see what was within.

Dr. Walter S. Adams, director of the Carnegie Institution of Washington Mt. Wilson Observatory, announced that he and his associates hoped to have the cover off the box soon. Adams made astronomical observations establishing proof of Einstein's relativity theory.

Two California scientists caused Einstein to change his mind. They are Dr. Edwin P. Hubble and Dr. Richard Chace Tolman. Hubble sits at the turret of the world's largest telescope and has moved secrets of the island universes of distant nebula.

WORLD RUNS DOWN

Tolman, companion of Hubble, is a physicist. He has taken Hubble's observations and evolved the theory that the major universe is expanding with explosive force and is running down because matter is being converted into energy and thus being annihilated.

These two men found the original Einstein concept of the universe could fit the case.

BOSTON BEAUTY RANKS FOURTH

The most beautiful debutante in Boston is the blonde Caroline Tickenor Hunnewell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hunnewell of Chestnut st.

At least that is the opinion of the anonymous "Audacious," acidly commentator in Tatler and American Sketch.

Miss Hunnewell doesn't pamper her looks, according to "Audacious," and she spends most of her time sailing a boat in Marblehead. She was selected as the fourth most beautiful "deb" in the country and no other Boston girls were named in the first eleven.

In a list of the 11 most popular debutantes in the entire country, "Audacious" lists Joan Nichols of Boston second and Ellen De Normandie of Lincoln fourth. He does not comment upon Miss Nichols, but of Miss De Normandie says, "She has the happy faculty of getting on with her own sex."

Of 11 debutantes ranked for prestige, Boston has only one, Miss Helen Cabot, who is placed third. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cabot of Jamaica Plain. Of that family, "Audacious" says: "They are sitting pretty in conservative Boston society."

Geraldine Allen of St. Louis was named as the most beautiful debutante of Denver was chosen the most popular and Madeline Alexander of Pittsburgh was ranked first in prestige.

WIDOW HELD IN LIQUOR CASE

A widow with six children, and a man who conducts a lunchroom patronized by high school students, were in Lynn district court today on liquor charges.

The widow, Mrs. Mary Dumblowski of Morris st., Lynn, whose children range from 2½ years to 15, was charged with keeping liquor with intent to sell.

Police raided her home and claim to have seized a gallon of liquor, a quantity of mash and an eight-gallon still.

Her case was continued to Feb. 17, and lacking $500 bail she was held in Lynn police headquarters.

Paul Nakas, proprietor of a lunch room opposite the Lynn English high school and Advent Christian Church, denied he sold liquor to children.

Police testified he sold a pint of rye to a youth for $2. He was fined $100 for keeping and exposing and $100 for sale, and appealed.

Arthur A. Drolet, proprietor of a hardware store in Franklin st., Lynn, was also fined $100 for sale and $100 fo. keeping liquor, and appealed. Both men were held in $500 each.

2 RARE FOSSILS AT SMITH

Northampton, Feb. 5 (AP)—Two rare fossils of creatures that roamed America millions of years ago have been found among specimens unearthed in the Black Hills last summer by a Smith College group.

"The best find" announcement from the college said, "was a well-preserved skull of Hyracodon Nebrascensis, a distinct relative of the rhinoceros, three-toed and a little smaller than a sheep, with large head, slender body and light limbs.

Among the rarest finds is a specimen of Cyclopidius, one of the extinct creodon family, grazing animals that inhabited the great plains.

The skull of the hyracodon was found by Prof. Howard A. Meyerhoff of the Department of Geology and Geography, and Miss Marion Hubbell of Providence, R. I.

Senate Committee Votes for Oil Ban

Washington, Feb. (AP)—The Senate Commerce Committee today approved the Capper bill to restrict the importation of foreign oils after a sharp division. The vote was 9 to 6.

A contest impends in the Senate however, both against the bill and against the jurisdiction of the Commerce Committee to act on the legislation.

Importation of all refined products including all by-products and fuel oil would be prohibited for the three years.

Chaplin, Minus Rib-Tickling Attire, May Try Talkies

Master of Pantomime Is Reported Ready to Toss Old-time Makeup on Shelf

New York City, Feb 5—The Smithsonian Institute, it was reported today, has made a blanket bid for the cane, the derby, the gunboat shoes and the trick mustache of one Charles Chaplin.

Charles Chaplin, alias Charlie Chaplin, may have no further use for them.

The master of pantomime, corner skids, ladder balances and countless rib-tickling gestures on the silent screen is reported to have stated—and does not deny the interview—that he has a yen for talking picture parts.

STRONG FOR TALKIES.

That underneath the dinky derby of speechless comedy the idea has taken root that the old time Charlie Chaplin has been laid out on the dusty shelves of the silent reel studios. That there has been born a Charles Chaplin, with voice, for the serious roles of the talkies.

He has been, it seems, a Dr. Jeky and Mr. Hyde, a Charlie Chaplin and a Charles Chaplin a well through all the years the world has laughed. The Charles Chaplin has ideas that the Charlie Chaplin would tweak his cane at, or serve with gesture more rude.

"I quite admire talking pictures, you know (and that is Charles Chaplin talking) and if I do go into the field with a speaking picture I'm determined to leave the old type Charlie Chaplin behind."

IN NEW YORK FOR OPENING

He is in New York from the West for the opening of his new "City Lights," a little grayer than on his last visit East. That picture, he states, may be the end of Charlie Chaplin.

And the fans may see Charles Chaplin in a talking drama, without his mispiced eyebrow minus his trick derby and cane and wearing shoes that fit, with spats. Then, when he is shown in close-up before a mirror, adjusting his top hat and swallow-tail, he will not have forgotten to don his trousers.

23 MORE FLU CASES IN CITY

While the number of influenza cases in Boston increased again today, lobar pneumonia was also reported taking a heavy toll of victims, according to a statement by Deputy Health Commissioner Joseph Monahan.

With widespread illness from colds and the grips filling the hospitals, Deputy Monahan announced 23 new cases of influenza, bringing the total since last Saturday to 73 with four deaths.

On the other hand, 11 new cases of lobar pneumonia and nine deaths were reported, jumping the toll from last Saturday to 40 cases and 22 deaths. The average for the past five years for the corresponding period was 33 cases of lobar pneumonia and 17 deaths, and 22 cases of influenza and two deaths.

War Hero Pleads in Congress for Cash to Save His Home

Washington, Feb. 5 (INS)—Joe Angelo, needing a shave, a clean shirt and four back meals but not lacking in courage, pleaded before the House ways and means committee for cash for needy veterans.

Wearing a D. S. C. given him for saving the life of his commanding officer during the war, a watch the officer's wife had given him and the gold mounted bullet that all but ended the officer's life, he said:

"Unless I get some cash quick they will foreclose on the little home I've been trying to pay for."

He had walked here from Camden, N. J.

"Me and my buddy had to sleep in a jail last night," he stated off, "with the doors locked. We're not crooks. I've got a wife and a child. My buddy's got five kids. And I don't know how long I've been out of work. There isn't any work—anywhere.

"I quit a job in a powder factory at a $1.25 an hour to join the army for a dollar a day. Now it's your turn to help me out of a hole.

'I've always been honest. I could go bootlegging and make plenty of money the same as I could have run and jumped in a dugout when Col. Patten was shot, but I wouldn't want to do that any more than you'd want me to do it."

The committee members took up a collection for Angelo and he bought a meal in the House restaurant and a railroad ticket to Camden.

STALIN SHOWS WORLD REVOLT HIS MAIN AIM

Moscow, Feb. 5 (AP)—Joseph Stalin, staging one of his infrequent speeches, today told the national industrial congress that the five-year plan of industrialization certainly will be completed in four years, and if Russia's technicians could take advantage of all the national resources it could be completed in three.

The Soviet Union soon will be the greatest agricultural nation on earth, he said, and the Communist system has been demonstrated before the world as the only one in which no economic crisis such as has laid low the capitalistic nations is impossible.

"We have everything," he said. "Iron, coal, oil, grain, cotton—everything but rubber, and we will have that in a year or so. No other country in the world has such possibilities of development as we have.

"But we have still more important obligations—those to the world proletariat. Now we must march on so that the world proletariat will say:

"There is our advance guard, our government, our fatherland. Let us support them against the capitalists in bringing about the world revolution."

Chicagoan Suicide After Honeymoon

Chicago, Feb. 5 (AP)—Edward J. Powell, wealthy street paving contractor, who recently married Mrs. Cornelia Fox, former wife of Morton H. Fox, Baltimore packer, killed himself last night in his "gold coast" apartment by swallowing poison while he and his mother were entertaining acquaintances.

Until last week Powell and his bride had been spending their honeymoon in Florida. He returned to Chicago unexpectedly, leaving his wife in Palm Beach.

M'DONALD AT WORK; DENIES BREAKDOWN

London, Feb. 5 (AP)—Disturbing reports that Ramsay MacDonald, British prime minister, had suffered a breakdown in health and would take an immediate vacation to recuperate were discredited at 10 Downing Street this morning.

The prime minister, despite an all-night session of the House of Commons, was at his desk.

Authoritative statements were made that he was in no danger of a breakdown in health and that his doctors had not advised a few days of complete rest, as was reported generally here last night.

Reports in political circles that MacDonald was feeling the strain of overwork occasioned no surprise.

There were no official announcements, and it was understood the Premier is not definitely ill, but the story in circulation was that he would take a brief holiday.

Few men since the days of the war have undertaken and carried out the tremendous amount of work which the Prime Minister has allotted to himself since he took office in May, 1929.

In addition to the London naval conference and the Indian round table conference, in both of which he was chairman, he has faced and thus far beaten a determined effort to put him out of office and has had to maintain the closest contact and supervision with other international conclaves, such as the reparation conferences, the League of Nations meetings, and the like.

FRIDAY and SATURDAY

NEW TREMORS SPREAD TERROR IN NAPIER

Napier, New Zealand, Feb. 5 (AP) —Frightened by new tremors which toppled standing buildings about the heads of rescue squads, authorities today speeded up the complete evacuation of this once beautiful New Zealand seaport.

An urgent appeal was sent to railroad officials at Wellington to provide the rolling stock necessary to to take refugees from Napier and the surrounding country to camps where they might be cared for until sanitary conditions are restored and dangerous buildings levelled.

DEATH TOLL MOUNTS.

Will every hour the death toll from the earth shocks has mounted and today Red Cross officials said the number of dead in Napier, Hastings and surrounding villages, stricken by Tuesday's quakes, would mount well past 1000. Thousands are injured and practically everyone is homeless.

Desire of the stricken citizenry to make last visits to the heaps of debris which were their homes is complicating evacuation. Many have insisted on returning to their former residences and searching the ruins for valuables, relics and the like.

The sewage systems have been destroyed and if any great number of the populace remains in the devastated zone much longer pestilence might be expected. H. M. S. Veronica, which was left stranded in the harbor when the quake occurred, has asked for new powder stores with which to level buildings considered likely to fall.

BODIES ARE HUNTED

In the main, rescue squads have confined their work to digging out bodies of victims from the debris. Today two women were found alive in a ruined house and extricated. They had been imprisoned since Tuesday morning.

Another shock rocked the ruins in Hastings today, throwing the populace into panic.

Martial law has been declared in the city.

QUAKE SHAKES ALBUQUERQUE

Albuquerque, N. M., Feb. 5—A sharp earth tremor was felt here last night.

The shock, which lasted approximately 30 seconds, caused a near panic in the theaters, and many persons rushed to the streets. One woman fainted.

Canned goods, dishes and other articles were thrown from shelves in stores and homes, and numerous persons reported they were thrown from their beds by the shock.

Large rocks rolled down into the streets from the sand hills about the city.

Two Expelled From N. Y. Stock Exchange

New York, Feb. 5 (AP)—The New York Stock Exchange today announced that Charles E. Danforth and Ralph Melson had been expelled from membership on the exchange. Both were individual traders.

The charge under which they were expelled was that they supplied stocks on orders entrusted to them without disclosing their interest in ownership of such securities to their actual principals, and concealed their operations by having other members of the exchange, jointly interested with them, accept and report the transaction.

Montana Woman Lost 17 Pounds Weight in 4 Weeks

Here's a letter written October 21, 1929, by Mrs. Fred Barringer of Lewistown, Montana, that ought to be read by every overweight woman in America.

When stout women can lose fat and at the same time gain in energy and vigor.

Gain in charm and vivaciousness.

Gain a healthy complexion and have eyes that sparkle with buoyant health.

And at insignificant cost—isn't it time to use common sense?

Please read this letter carefully:

"Gentlemen: I started taking Kruschen every morning as directed as I was very much overweight and wanted to reduce.

I had tried going on a diet but would get so hungry that my diet would not last long, so I decided to give "Kruschen Salts" a fair trial. The day I started to take them I weighed 256 lbs. and at present, which has been just four weeks, I weigh 239 lbs. and I must say I feel better in every way, besides looking much better.

May all large people, both men and women, who want to reduce in an easy way, also Kruschen Salts a fair trial. Just try one bottle and by following directions, I am sure it will convince anyone. I bought my second bottle today."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts four weeks costs but 85c at any drugstore in America.

Why not try one bottle—if not perfectly satisfied—money back. When taking Kruschen you can reduce more swiftly by cutting out pastry and fatty meat—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—it's the safe way to reduce.

Radio Soloist Slain After Singing 'The Day Is Over'

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 5 (AP)—A young choir director and radio singer, Floyd McKissack, 22, was shot to death last night and a close friend, Oscar Neely, 39, who police said had been made insane by the after-effects of wartime shellshock, was named by them as the slayer.

Five shotgun slugs killed McKissack as he rummaged for a late evening meal in the kitchen of Mrs. Joe Kennedy, his landlady and Neely's sister.

McKissack had come home after completing his weekly broadcast over radio station WMC with a solo, "Now That the Day Is Over."

Surrendering voluntarily, Neely told police:

"I wanted to kill them all. They were after Joe's (Joe Kennedy) property and Joe was my friend. When I saw Floyd standing there in the kitchen eating Joe's food, I couldn't stand it."

Havana, Feb. 5 (AP)—Members of the 12 Havana labor organizations who answered the call for a general strike Tuesday, today returned to their jobs, satisfied with their protest against the administration tactics.

AKERSON IS OUT OF WHITE HOUSE

Washington, Feb. 5 (AP)—George Akerson, secretary to President Hoover, today reached the end of his official connection with the White House.

Mr. Hoover has selected no one to take his place. It was said at the White House that probably no successor would be chosen for several weeks. In the interim Secretaries Richey and Walter Newton will divide the responsibilities that until today were Akerson's.

Dorchester Woman Says Her Baby First in 1931

Mrs. George A. Smith, of 65 Tuttle st., Dorchester, has written to Dudley Field Malone, well known lawyer, disputing his claim that his son, Dudley Field Malone, 2d, was the first child born in the United States in 1931.

According to hospital records at the Massachusetts Memorial Hospital, the Smith baby was born 20 seconds after midnight, and her baby was proclaimed the first New Year's baby in New England. The Malone child was born 60 seconds after midnight.

JOIE RAY SIXTH IN SNOW RACE

Louisville, Que., Feb. 5 (AP)—Frank Hoey of Montreal, with almost an hour's lead over the nearest competitor, Arthur Newton of South Africa, led the international snowshoers out of Louiseville for Berthier today on the road to Montreal, where the race ends Saturday.

Hoey seemed to have the race sewed up, unless he should suffer some misfortune such as has eliminated over half of the original field of 48 and brought death of heart disease to Jean Chouinard yesterday.

Joie Ray, former middle distance star of Chicago, was in sixth place today, but far back of Hoey in elapsed time.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one or two Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

BUTLER WRONG, VANDERBILT DECLARES

Washington, Feb. 5 (AP)—The Navy Department does not intend to make public the charges against Maj.-Gen. Smedley D. Butler.

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 5 (AP)—Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., reputed source of the Mussolini story that has resulted in Gen. Smedley D. Butler facing a court-martial, was on record today as saying the Marine officer had "quoted inaccurately" something he heard at the Affiliated Lecture Bureau in New York last November.

Giving his explanation of his silence regarding the Mussolini incident since it brought the general a court-martial summons, the young newspaperman last night said he would relate correctly what he said originally concerning the Mussolini anecdote, if called as a witness in the court-martial.

INCORRECTLY QUOTED

Gen. Butler in a recent Philadelphia speech charged the Italian dictator left the scene of an accident wherein an automobile in which he was riding struck a child.

Vanderbilt said he was "bound to respect the strictest confidence" surrounding several incidents related by himself and others in the New York lecture bureau.

"All but three or four persons have respected that confidence," he said. "Gen. Butler quoted inaccurately what was said. Everything that has come out since the story was told has been garbled. There are 18 or 20 people who have remained silent.

READY TO TESTIFY.

"I will relate accurately from the witness stand what I said, if Gen. Butler or his counsel ask me to appear. So far I have told it only to the State Department in a letter which they declined to make public. I have told the State Department I will appear at the court-martial if it is desired, and I have informed Gen. Butler similarly."

Vanderbilt said he felt that what he said in the lecture bureau had "no bearing" on Gen. Butler's case.

Hero Dog and Rescued Pal

LITTLE MARY AMARI and her police dog pet, hero of fire in Woburn house today. Trapped in the cellar by smoke and flames, the dog barked a warning to all those in the dwelling. All escaped. The dog was later rescued by firemen. (Staff photo.)

BELLE'S CLUB A 'DREISER IDEA'

New York, Feb. 5 (INS)—Belle Livingstone started her night club at the suggestion of Theodore Dreiser, she confided to Federal Judge Francis Caffey today, and it turned out to be just another American tragedy.

Belle was testifying in her own defense in contempt proceedings brought against her because she had presided as hostess of the salon despite an injunction restraining her from any connection with dry law violators.

"This place was a speakeasy, wasn't it?" asked Assistant U. S. Attorney Charles H. Finkelstein.

"I didn't know it was one I thought it was a salon."

During her testimony she spoke of the literary lights, who frequented her salon, and touched lightly on her own literary career.

"I have been writing ever since I was 20 years old," she said, "but I never made any money at it."

Belle said she made her money by acting as hostess, at $1000 a week.

DOG SAVES FIVE FROM FLAMES

A heroic police dog, who gave an alarm of fire had to be rescued himself today by three Woburn boys in a fire at 25-27 Vining st., Woburn, that drove five persons to the street.

His barking in the cellar of No. 25 aroused Joseph Amari, his wife, Angelina, and three children, Mary, 6; Jennie, 4, and Rosario, 14 months.

After the Amaris made their escape the dog was missed and Leo Dion, Roger Flaherty and Daniel Beaton, neighbors, located him in the cellar. A half hour's work in resuscitation by firemen revived him.

Damage to the building was estimated by fire officials at $3000.

BRUENING ASKS REICHSTAG TO SPEED BUDGET

Berlin, Feb. 5 (AP)—Chancellor Bruening put his 1931 economy budget up to the Reichstag today in a fervent 40-minute appeal that it be passed quickly.

"It is imperative," he said, "that this budget be passed in the normal parliamentary way. Abroad they are looking upon this debate with undisguised interest.

"The Government is unalterably opposed to invoking Article 48 (the 'dictator clause') for putting the budget into effect. It is up to you to assure the world Germany will continue to be worthy of credit, moving forward toward a final solution of the reparations problem."

"SHADOW OVER NATION"

"The government agrees that this problem hovers like a dark shadow over the German people and over all measures for their salvation. Agitation and opposition will not help the government to lay the foundations for a real solution.

"We are convinced the realization is growing throughout the world that the reparations issue is not only extraordinarily depressing in Germany, but that it is a stumbling block in the path of the whole world's economic recovery.

"If we are happy over this realization, at the same time we regret exceedingly that foreign countries do not realize that Germany must adopt economic measures which they may not like but which are necessary if we are to meet the reparations payments."

GERMANY MUST PAY

"So long as no other solution is reached, we must fulfill the reparations payments by raising the wherewithal out of our own resources and by strengthening agriculture and industry.

"The government is not willing, merely for the sake of popularity, to be maneuvered into a situation which will not improve our condition but will harm Germany's interests."

Joseph Goebbels, National Socialist, demanded resignation of the Cabinet and dissolution of the Reichstag, asserting Germany already is bankrupt because of the government policy to fulfill the reparation agreement. If there were a new election now, he said, his party would win 180 seats.

LAND SALES TO BANK TOLD BY GIBSON

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 5 (AP)—Charles E. Gibson of Boston, head of the Gibson Land Co., testified under cross-examination today in the trial of Arthur H. Hale, former treasurer of the Merrimack River Savings Bank. Hale is charged with misapplication of the bank's funds.

Gibson, whose land transactions centered in western states, was asked by Robert C. Murchie, defense counsel:

"Was it customary for you to sell mortgages through banks in the East?"

"No," replied Gibson.

"When did you begin?" Murchie asked.

"The only bank institution to which I sold mortgages was the Merrimack River Savings Bank and I don't know when it began," Gibson said.

"I began negotiations with Mr. Hale in 1905. If the transactions went to the bank I knew nothing about it. Some period from 1910 to 1920 Mr. Hale told me to my surprise that all lands he had taken and were outstanding were held by the bank."

Gibson said the custom of selling farm land by way of a mortgage was practiced long before his time.

CHAPLIN WILL ATTEND 'CITY LIGHTS' PREMIERE IN LONDON AND PARIS

STAR TO BE ABROAD 8 MONTHS

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1931, By Universal Service

Los Angeles, Feb. 5—When Charlie Chaplin said au revoir to his Hollywood friends, he told them he wouldn't see them for eight months.

Charlie said when he left town was to go to Europe and take "City Lights," and he present at the opening in London and in Paris of his picture. He is now the sole actor who can show his picture in its original form in Europe. I am told Charlie received more money for the foreign rights than his entire picture cost. Whatever misgivings he might have had before making another silent picture in a world of talkies were certainly dissipated after the reception given his "City Lights."

Louella O. Parsons

He told me he desires to make a Spanish picture next. What a lot of comedy he could have at a bull fighter. Can't you see the funny little figure wearing the toreador costume and trying to coax the bull into action?

IF CARL LAEMMLE wanted to reminisce today, what a wealth of stories he could tell on his 25 years in the motion picture business. When he started, a trust existed, in which the big five were seeking to keep him and any other independent producers out of the theaters. They succeeded, too, for a time. Mr. Laemmle came from Oshkosh where he had been a merchant. He and William Fox joined forces, fought the trust and finally won. At one time Mr. Laemmle had Mary Pickford, Owen Moore and Tom Ince and his Imp Pictures were among the best, although they were only one reel in length and today would be considered extremely crude. Mr. Laemmle has weathered many a storm and fought many a battle during his 25 years, and today he has the love and respect of the entire motion picture industry.

LUCKY DAY for Marian Marsh when some of the executives saw her in the stage play, "Young Sinners" and later made some tests of her. She was signed up pronto, and her first assignment right off the reel was playing opposite John Barrymore. That isn't all! Little Marsh is staying right at First National doing the leading lady act for Edward Robinson in "Little Idol." I speak of all this happening to her, for Warners have seemed to concentrate so much the last month on stars that already have a following that her rise is interesting. Charles Butterworth is also in "The Idol."

A MAN WHO doesn't go to the movies often happened to stop in a Hollywood boulevard theater and saw "She Knew What She Wanted." He telephoned to tell me it was one of the most amusing pictures he ever saw.

"Don't miss it," he advised. "It's a great picture."

James Cruze is the producer of "She Knew What She Wanted," likewise of "Salvation Nell," which goes into production today. Ralph Graves, who was at one time head man at Columbia pictures and later a writer at Universal, plays the male lead in "Salvation Nell." Others in the cast are Helen Chandler, announced as the lead; Lois Lane, Jason Robards, Charlotte Walker, Mathew Betz and Frankie Jennings. Sounds like a worthwhile cast.

'CIMARRON' STAR INVITES ALL COVERED WAGON VETERANS

Who knows where there is a veteran of Covered Wagon days? A search has been started in and around Boston, at the suggestion of Richard Dix, star of "Cimarron," opening at RKO Keith's tonight at 11:15 o'clock. Mr. Dix, preparing to enter production of the Edna Ferber romance, found out that many of the pioneers who rumbled over the prairie in covered wagons, started from New England, some from in and around this city.

With the production completed, he learned that one of the first cities in which "Cimarron" was to be exhibited was Boston. So he telegraphed RKO Keith officials in this city to round up as many of the pioneers as possible and invite them as his guests at a special showing of the film. He desires to serve a two-fold purpose, according to telegram. First of all he seeks expert opinion on the scenes that depict the hazards encountered and he believes that the men who actually went through these trials are best qualified to pass judgment. Secondly, he is of the opinion that such a gathering might mean a reunion wherein these rugged old citizens might recall incidents familiar to one another.

Richard Dix

The Oklahoma of today admits that it was largely through the men of New England that a great state grew upon the map. Many remained there to grow with the West and to aid in building it, but there were also some who returned, having contributed more than their share of work, health and money. The management of RKO Keith's is searching for such men. Arrangements will later be made for a special showing of "Cimarron" in their honor.

Mr. Dix's latest telegram follows:

"Will you invite every old timer in New England who participated in the Oklahoma land rush or who contemplated joining in this empire building project to be my personal guest at the presentation of Cimarron in your theater. I want them to compare the land rush depicted in this RKO Radio picture with the actual occurrence. Its authenticity will make them thrill. The Oklahoma pioneers parallel what the patriots did in establishing this republic."

"Cimarron" begins its regular engagement at RKO Keith's tomorrow, tonight's premiere being a special opening due to the epic nature of the picture. Dix is seen at Yancey Cravat, adventurer and lover. In the cast are Irene Dunne, Estelle Taylor, William Collier, Jr., George E. Stone, and Edna May Oliver.

'TANNHAUSER' NEW TRIUMPH FOR STARS

By MOSES SMITH

THE BEST performance of Wagner's "Tannhauser" that the Chicago Civic Opera Co. has ever given in Boston was to be seen and heard last night at the Boston Opera House—in fact, it was seen and heard by an audience that filled the house and that was very enthusiastic.

That the performance reached so high a level was remarkable, considering the defects to be patently heard in the orchestra pit. But on stage things went very well, indeed. There was an excellent singing cast, headed by the redoubtable Theodor Strack in the title role. Mr. Strack was not merely a tenor, but an able singing-actor, investing the character with a plausible appearance for the eye, giving illusion, by tone and gesture, of the knight surfeited with Venus' charms in the first act, tortoured with remorse in the third act. He sang beautifully in the final scene.

THE NEW Elisabeth was taken by Mme. Emmé Redell, who did her best work to date. She found the part better suited to her voice than either of the two in which she has previously appeared, and in her stage business—for she has not yet reached a point of identification with character—she was much more at home. Rudolf Bockelmann, similarly new here as Wolfram, turned in an excellent performance, despite curious unevenness in singing. He was the handsomest personage on stage to boot.

Mme. Frida Leider sang beautifully and understandingly the music allotted to Venus, and seemed to us more secure in her acting as well as more persuasive to the eye than last year. Chase Baromeo performed ably as the Landgrave as did the singers in the minor characters.

* * *

IN GENERAL, the performance on stage moved with precision. The choruses were rendered with exceptional spirit, volume and beauty of tone. Curiously at odds was the orchestra, under Emil Cooper. Often the playing was ragged. Partly this was accountable to a double bill in the afternoon. In addition, we thought, Mr. Cooper, for all his vigor, did not succeed in achieving the best results from his limited complement of men, and often overdrove them to handicap the singers on stage.

He himself must have been tired from conducting, in the afternoon, Massenet's "La Navarraise," which formed a double bill with the same composer's "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame." Mary Garden featured both excellent performances.

THEATER WILL REOPEN WITH FILMS

Under the direction of George Kraska, the Fine Arts Theater reopens Feb. 16 for the presentation of foreign and American films. Mr. Kraska is well known to those who have been interested in the development of this branch of the motion picture industry in Boston. He came to Boston as a lad of nine from his home in Odessa, Ukrainia, and entered and finished with honors at grammar school here. His earliest artistic interests were along musical lines. With the first $5 he earned as a young boy singing in a synagogue choir during the high Jewish holidays he bought a violin. His later instruction came at the hands of the noted Boston Symphony artist, Jacques Hoffman.

George Kraska

In 1920 he became interested in the progress of foreign films. He interviewed distributors and producers. After the usual long and careful preliminaries, and at first handicapped by a lack of financial aid, Mr. Kraska began bringing one by one to Boston.

Expenses were heavy, but at length came the organization of the Artkino Guild, when many influential Bostonians were interested in this unusual and meritorious effort on the part of Mr. Kraska to bring the foreign cinema to Boston.

5 INDIA SALT MAKERS SEIZED IN NEW 'WAR'

Bombay, India, Feb. 5 (AP)—Renewal by India Nationalists in a square here of their salt-making campaign today led to the arrest of the five members of the working committee of the All-India National Congress.

It was the 22d successive war council of the congress here to go to jail. The 23d war council promptly took its place at the salt deposits.

The national civil disobedience campaign is being intensified. Picketing of the foreign cloth shops is increasing and a number of clashes between pickets and police have resulted.

Gandhi's "Mind Open" to British Offer

Lucknow, United Provinces, India, Feb. 5 (AP)—Mahatma Gandhi, who came here yesterday from Allahabad, asserted today that his mind was open to conviction as to the worth of British offers for qualified Indian self-government.

He said if his friends at the London round table conference, Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and M. R. Jayakar, were able to convince him Mr. MacDonald had offered something more than Gandhi had been able to make out of his words by reading them he was prepared to advise the working committee of the All-India National Congress to call off the civil disobedience campaign.

"I am a man of peace," he said, "but circumstances have made my life one of struggle. I shall leave no stone unturned to attain peace."

Convict's Tip Leads to Arrest of 7

Newark, N. J., Feb. 5 (AP)—Five persons were under arrest in Newark and two more in New York today in connection with an $8000 payroll robbery at the Gillette Razor Co. plant December 19 and a $300 robbery of an Elizabeth Rubber Co. the same day.

The tip which led to the arrests came from a life convict in East View Penitentiary, New York.

Negro 'Doctor' Takes Own Remedy, Dies

Chicago, Feb. 5 (AP)—Robert Martin, a negro, was called a "doctor" because he went from house to house selling his patent medicine.

$115,068,500 IN U. S. AIRPORTS

Washington, Feb. 5 (INS)—America's investment in airports amounted to $115,068,500 at the beginning of 1931, the aeronautics section of the Commerce Department announced today after a nationwide survey.

There were 1113 airports in the country at that time.

"The amount planned for expansion of airport facilities is $20,223,050," the announcement said.

The leader among states in money invested was New York, with $19,890,000 Michigan followed with $14,882,000 and California was third with $13,165,000.

The largest number of airports was 115 in California, followed by 66 in Texas, 61 in New York, 57 in Pennsylvania, and 50 in Illinois.

U.S. BARS KAISER IN BROADCAST

New York, Feb. 5 (INS)—Former Emperor Wilhelm of Germany will not be heard on the air in this country, due to disapproval of the State Department, according to a copyrighted article in the New York Evening Journal today.

The article, in part, follows:

"The lone wood-chopper of Doorn will not follow Pope Pius XI on the air as the first of the probably remaining three world notables—Gandhi and Stalin are the others—whose voices never have been broadcast in the United States.

"Setting itself up as an unofficial censorship board, the State Department has turned thumbs down on a broadcast to the United States by former Emperor Wilhelm of Germany, the Evening Journal learned today from an authentic source."

$50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

What is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip.

If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or the most unusual event news tip received; $10 for the next best; $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

MARSHAL FOCH'S WAR MEMORS

VICIOUS THRUST HURLS BRITISH BACK, BRINGS WAR'S CRISIS

EVERY ARMY IS FOR ITSELF IN ATTACK ON 50-MILE FRONT

In yesterday's instalment, Marshal Foch described the opening of the great German drive on the Western Front on March 21, 1918, which the German General Staff believed would bring victory. Foch had been advocating unified command to co-ordinate the Allied operations and the peril that loomed when the German drive got under way confirmed his contention. In today's instalment the Marshal tells of the disaster that threatened the Allies and of the vital necessity for the immediate creation of a Supreme Command.

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH,
Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies During the Closing Phases of the World War.

Translated from the French by Col. R. Bentley Mott

ON MARCH 21, 1918, the plan of the German staff was carried out in all its amplitude. The material means brought into action 50 divisions, and the extent of the attack (50 miles) was far greater than anything seen since stabilization had taken place on the western front. In no way inferior were the results obtained.

On the north, the British Third Army maintained in general its positions, but it was quite otherwise with General Gough's Fifth Army. Along almost the whole of its front it was swept away, its right in particular being thrown back west of Saint Quentin up to the edge of the Crozat Canal.

On the following day, the 22d, this army, badly shaken, retreated toward the Somme. An extraordinary fact here took place—one only to be explained by the contagion which spread from the confused and shaken troops, driven in by the heavy attack on the front line: The Somme, running several miles in rear, was captured by the enemy practically without a blow being struck. The same phenomenon occurred at the Aisne, two months later, during the attack on May 27.

Despite the intervention of the British reserves, the general retirement of the Fifth Army proceeded at such a pace as to show that its power of resistance had been seriously weakened.

Field Marshal Haig, becoming anxious, requested General Petain to relieve as quickly as possible by French troops the British contingents distributed between the Oise and the Somme at Peronne. But General Petain was considerably preoccupied by his own front in Champagne and for the moment he could do no more than adhere to the arrangements previously made—that is to say, dispatch the French Third Army to the British zone.

British Retreat
With That Exception Allied Line Holds

However, in view of the time required to effect the move, the action of this army could not be fully felt before the 27th. Until then, the British would have to be left more or less to themselves.

In order to lessen in part the gravity of their situation, the French Commander-in-Chief, in agreement with Marshal Haig, decided to entrust General Fayolle, commanding the group of Armies of the Reserve, with the conduct of the battle between Barisis-aux-Bois and Peronne.

General Fayolle therefore had under his command the British divisions which were fighting in that area, the French Third Army on its arrival and ultimately the French First Army, which was at that moment being withdrawn from the region of the Weyre. He was instructed to establish at all costs a solid defensive front on the line Peronne-Guiscard-Chauny-Barisis-aux-Bois, or at the very least on the line Nesle-Noyan.

However, events marched with a rapidity that defied all calculations. On March 23 the German extended their front of attack to the east of Arras. The Fifth Army, apart from a slight withdrawal west of Croisilles, successfully repulsed all the enemy's assaults, but in order to maintain contact with the Fifth Army, it was obliged to draw back its right in the direction of Beaumetz.

The British Fifth Army continued its retreat without interruption. On the 23rd, it abandoned the bridge-head at Peronne and the next day the line of the Somme from Peronne to Ham. In vain the French V Corps (Third Army), hurrying into action, tried to defend Noyon and the Oise canal. It was outflanked, and on the 25th, Noyon fell into the hands of the Germans.

What had happened was that General Gough's right, instead of retiring in the direction of Roye-Montdidier, which would have kept it in touch with the French left, retreated toward Nesle and Amiens, thus drawing away from the French and moving in the direction of the English base. In this way there was created between the British right and the French left a gap of some two miles in width. Our Second Calvary Corps, in spite of all its efforts, was unable to stop this breach, and through it the enemy advanced rapidly.

General Fayolle counted on throwing into the units of the Third Army as they detrained; but the question was, would he have time to do so, and if the breaking up of Gough's Army continued, would not these arriving units themselves be carried away by the torrent before they could re-establish the continuity of the front?

Defeat Loomed
As Two Battles Raged With Each Army for Self

The French Commander-in-Chief, who had seen Field Marshal Haig at Dury on the 23rd and had declared himself in accord with the latter as to the necessity of maintaining the close liaison between the British and French armies, now doubted whether this contact could be re-established.

In view of the developments of the 24th, he despaired of the British resisting sufficiently to enable the French divisions to come into action under favorable conditions on the right of the British Fifth Army, and he considered that fresh dispositions were now required to meet the situation.

These views he communicated the same day, March 24, to the commanders of the various groups of armies, in the following instructions:

"It is above all essential," he wrote "that the armature of the French armies taken as a whole be solidly maintained; in particular the group of Armies of the Reserve must not me cut from the remainder of our forces. This being assured, maintain contact with the British forces if possible."

This was a grave decision, one which appeared to guard imperfectly the interests of the Allies; moreover, it threatened to deal a fresh blow to the morale of the British troops, already so gravely affected.

The following day, March 25, Field Marshal Haig, at Abbeville, handed General Weygand a note in which he set forth his requests and his intentions. His requests had for their object the immediate concentration "astride the Somme, west of Amiens, of at least twenty French divisions for the purpose of acting against the flank of the German attack on the British Army." This was equivalent to a decision to transfer the British rgistance to the west of Amiens." His intentions were expressed in this simple sentence: "The British Army must fight falling back slowly and covering the Channel ports."

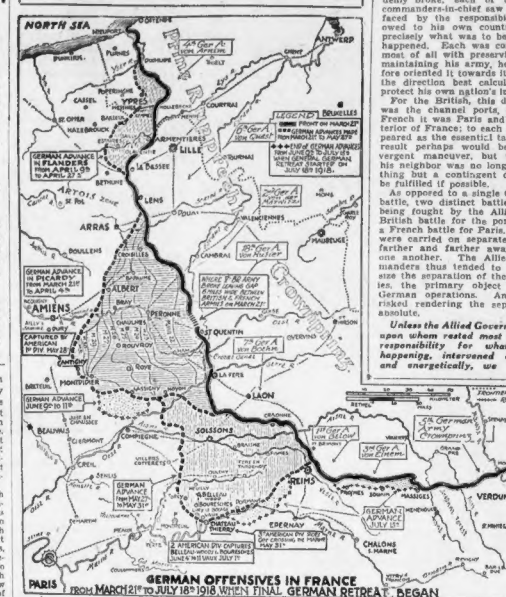
As can be seen, the moment a violent and sustained crisis suddenly broke, each of the two commanders-in-chief saw himself faced by the responsibility owed to his own country, and precisely what was to be feared happened. Each was concerned most of all with preserving and maintaining his army, he therefore oriented it towards its base, the direction best calculated to protect his own nation's interests.

For the British, this direction was the channel ports, for the French it was Paris and the interior of France; to each this appeared as the essential task. The result perhaps would be a divergent maneuver, but to help his neighbor was no longer anything but a contingent duty, to be fulfilled if possible.

As opposed to a single German battle, two distinct battles were being fought by the Allies: A British battle for the ports, and a French battle for Paris. These were carried on separate and farther and farther away from one another. The Allied commanders tended to emphasize the separation of their armies, the primary object of the German operations. And they risked rendering the separation absolute.

Unless the Allied Governments, upon whom rested most of the responsibility for what was happening, intervened quickly and energetically, we WERE

See-Saw of War Fortunes



THIS MAP visualizes the battle line in France when the great German offensive started in March, 1918, and shows the positions of various armies and the changes in the front as a result of the battles fought between March 21 and July 18, 1918. In forthcoming instalments Marshal Foch describes the various moves indicated on the map. The map of the front should be preserved for reference in future articles.

MARCHING TOWARDS CERTAIN DEFEAT. They of the clearly affirm that the interests of the coalition come before everything else; to do this they should create an organ superior to their armies in the field and which would take in hand the safeguarding of the common interests and direct the united resources of both partners.

On Sunday, March 24, about 3 p. m., even before General Petain had issued his instructions which were to put the seal upon the divergence between his views and those of Marshal Haig, I had, on my own responsibility, asked to see M. Clemenceau, the Prime Minister, and had handed him a note in which I called his attention to the evolution of the battle then going on.

Faces Huge Crisis
Tells President Armies Must Have One Commander

I explained the military dispositions which should at once be taken and the necessity for "an organ to direct the war"—one capable of giving orders and seeing that they were executed. Otherwise the risk remained for the coalition of going in to a battle entailing the gravest consequences inadequately equipped, and inadequately directed.

His first words, when I gave him my note, were:

"You are not going to desert me, you! I am in agreement with Haig and Petain, what more can i do?"

"No, Mr. President," I answered, "I am not going to desert you, but each one of us must shoulder his own responsibilities and without delay: that is why I have handed you this note."

As chief of staff of the army I was military adviser to the French government.

(General Foch was then Chief of the War Department staff. The chief of staff of the armies in the field is designated in French as "le major-general"—(Translator).

Grave events were happening, and I could not remain passive when disaster was imminently threatening. The time had come for each man to assume his responsibilities, and it was most important for the French Government to comprehend that the particular terror of its Prime Minister (M. Clemenceau), his unsurpassed activity and his frequent conversations with General Haig, did not suffice to carry on an immense, long and hard battle by the Allied Armies.

To solve the problem, it was essential to set up at once a directing organ, which would be wholly and solely concerned with the conduct of the allied war, which would be selected by and be responsible to the allied governments, possessed of the necessary experience, prestige and aided by an appropriate staff. Failing that, the struggle would end in division of efforts, impotence and disaster.

This organ could be neither the Versailles executive committee, which on March 14th had been deprived of all its means of action and of all its authority, nor the supreme war council of the allied governments, for its decisions would inevitably be always too late to meet an emergency.

Field Marshal Haig that very day recognized the necessity. On March 25, about 11 p. m., when he could no longer have any doubt as to the intentions of the French high command, he telegraphed to the chief of the imperial general staff, in London, to come at once to France, in order that a supreme command for the whole western front might be created as quickly as possible.

In response to this appeal, General Wilson landed at Boulogne on the morning of the 25th. It had been preceded by Lord Milner, a member of the British War Cabinet, who had arrived at Versailles the day before, under orders from Mr. Lloyd George to "send the Cabinet a personal report on the situation."

Taking advantage of the presence in France of these two British officials, M. Clemenceau arranged a meeting for 6 afternoon of the 26th at Compiegne, at French General Headquarters. Unfortunately, neither General Wilson nor Marshal Haig was able to attend, both being detained at Abbeville.

The result was there were really two meetings on that day—one at Compiegne, at which I assisted with the President of the Republic, M. Clemenceau, M. Loucheur, Lord Milner and General Petain; the other at Abbeville, where General Wilson, Field Marshal Haig and my chief of staff, General Weygand, assembled.

Electric Light Bills Seem to Be Larger

Editor Boston American:

I quite agree with Alex Kamenetsky of Mattapan on the electric light question that bills seem larger. Would like to know why, when it is supposed to be metered service. They should rate one by the hundred square foot area.

Operators Defended on Phone Charges

Editor Boston American:

Regarding the attached copy of your editorial in Monday's edition, while I appreciate that Mr. Marshall is conducting an investigation before our commission, I thought I might with propriety offer this comment concerning your statement in the editorial.

Knowing the American as I do and knowing it to be a daily source of inspiration for a higher Americanism and a greater acceptance of our civic responsibilities, I am quite sure you would not knowingly permit an injustice to be done, either to our commission or to the rank and file of the telephone operators. While I hold no brief for the company or the operators, I am quite sure that you will agree that as a whole, the operators are decent, honest girls, and it certainly is not fair to insinuate that they would knowingly dishonestly charge calls against subscribers for the benefit of the company.

The mere schedule as filed with the commission, provides for an initial period of five minutes on local calls and on five and ten cent toll calls, with an overtime period of five minutes and three minutes.

Your editorial was the first information that any change had been made by the company on the initial period of local calls. As a matter of fact, about 40 per cent of the subscribers in the Metropolitan District, where the great bulk of measured service is, are on dial service, and up to date no device has been worked out to get overtime on local calls, so that one could talk until the cows come home and be charged for only one call, because it is entirely auto.natic, without an operator having anything to do with it. Of the other 65 per cent a majority are on unlimited service, so that the question of the length of time of the call is not involved.

As to that particular statement in your editorial it is to be regretted that the writer did not acquaint himself with the facts.

It is quite true, as the observations of our inspectors from time to time show, that operators do in the load periods occasionally overcharge and as frequently undercharge, but that is we are quite sure, because of the load and not dishonesty.

In the matter of detailed statement of monthly calls, to which you refer, it is likely that Mr. Marshall will bring up that subject so that it would not be proper for me to comment on it.

It is quite true that for several years I have been carrying on a campaign for an equitable division of the time between subscribers on party lines under the slogan "Tell it all in five minutes and give your neighbor a chance" and there is no question that conditions on party lines today are very much improved because in the case of a very large majority of people it was only necessary to call their attention to the fact that they were using the line to the exclusion of the other subscribers, all of whom are only commuters upon that line, the same as upon a railroad, trolley or bus line.

I am quite sure you will appreciate the spirit that prompts this statement. Sincerely,

WILLIAM H. O'BRIEN,
Director of Telephone and Telegraph Utilities.

Charitable Work of J. F. L. A. Is Praised

Editor Boston American:

During my years of club life, and Max Henry Newman will vouch for the veracity of this statement, I have never met up with so alert and kind a young co-ed group as the J. F. L. A. of Roxbury, a club with a charitable purpose. In the past four years of existence, this group has done everything in its power to aid every needy person materially. This year they are running a dance at the Wellington Auditorium, Mattapan, on Friday evening, March 6, the proceeds of which will go towards the fostering of their most charitable aims.

Veteran Praises Boston American on Bonus Fight

Editor Boston American:

Dear Sir: For years I have enjoyed the evening newspaper hour reading the Boston American.

A paper with editorials which prove over and over it has the courage of its convictions.

My paper! because it is American. It is a privilege indeed to write a letter to my paper, and were it printed an honor beyond compare.

It seems to me that a country with an annual income of $90,000,000,000 is making a big issue of a small one—the soldiers' bonus. The boys who nobly fought and served to protect our homes under their flag are now building like homes of their own.

An emergency existed. An emergency exists. These homes and their priceless inhabitants need protection. Those who have the power hesitate?

These veterans did not ask for a bonus; they are not asking for one now. But they do need that "cold storage" certificate, and most vitally. They need it all, not part.

An axe without a handle is useless. So is this bonus. Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, said he believed it to be against the best interests of the veteran to pay him his bonus in cash.

There is no glory in that statement. Veterans who live in luxury are be done any compliment that heading. Those who are forced through circumstances to borrow annually cannot be benefited by the bonus as it stands.

This so called, "adjusted compensation certificate" is adjusted to revert back to the treasury a goodly amount in interest on loans at six per cent.

To pay by legislation any other than the full face value of these certificates, upon application of the veteran is a waste of time and a slap in the face to the veteran.

I take my hat off to Mr. William R. Hearst with many thanks for his timely aid at all times to the Vets.

Mass. Girl Made Happy

MANY times a child has everything to make her happy and still is dissatisfied. This may not be the youngster's fault. Often it is due to a condition easily corrected.

Take the experience of Mrs. E. Schenning, 20 Bruckenhuy Street, Boston, who says: "Nothing seemed to please Emily. She became fretful, feverish, had frequent bilious spells. She was constipated.

"A doctor friend advised California Fig Syrup and I got some. It relieved her trouble promptly; made her bright and happy again. We have used it for several years."

Mothers by thousands praise this pure vegetable product. Children love it. Doctors recommend it to relieve constipation, feverishness, fretfulness, sour breath, to open the bowels in colds or children's ailments.

Appetite is increased by the use of California Fig Syrup; breath is sweetened; coated tongue is cleared; digestion and assimilation are aided; weak bowels and stomach are strengthened.

Lace Has Present and Future Mode

By ANN ARDEN

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WLEX.

ALTHOUGH THERE may be a slight lull in entertaining activities (what with everyone dashing away here and there) there seems to be no inventive lull with the couturiers. They keep right on sending us frocks that in some way give a fresh twist to a well treated subject. It hardly seems possible that evening gowns could go a stitch farther to be unusual or elegant after having run the gamut of charms this season

* * *

NOTHING HAS equaled lace for longevity in fashion. Popular for several seasons now, its continued importance for spring is assured. Laces can be demure or sophisticated, dressy enough for the formal occasion and simple enough for the small occasion while always flattering and becoming. Add to their quantifications the fact that they are exceedingly practical, since they are none the worse for a hurried packing.

* * *

THE COMBINING of black and white lace is a new, smart note, and the dinner gown pictured has several new features. Of black lace, with square neckline, full lower section set on in points, the shoulder ruffles and deep skirt border are of white lace. A belt of black velvet ribbon and two flowers of the same form are worn on left side of bodice.

* * *

BLACK GLOVES and slippers and lace earrings of brilliants complete this smart costume

* * *

ELABORATE LACES become less important as the vogue for lace grows. Simple designs made by a variety in the mesh rather than the outlines in heavy threads are used for new frocks and for trimming. The designs themselves are varied and interesting. Printed silks have inspired new technique in laces. There are many floral designs done in a modern manner. While combined with black or color in a lace pattern is a development of the vogue for designs that follow the silk print

* * *

THE JEWELED ornament is the new symbol of a gay attitude toward fashion. If your hair is short or "getting longer," you can use it to such charming advantage.

* * *

TINY JEWELED combs of new inspiration are studded with rhinestones and often come in pairs, to be inserted one at either side of the coiffure. Larger ones are equally as ornamental, sometimes incorporating rhinestone studded bails. They can be used at the nape of the neck to confine hanging locks. Or they can accent a back swirl of hair brought to one side in sophisticated effect

"KONJOLA SURE REAL MEDICINE"

Young Lady Declares That Modern Compound Made Her Feel Like New Person

Seven million bottles used in two years! A medicine must have merit to make a record like that. Konjola does have merit—that is why it is today a household name in tens of thousands of American homes.

MISS LILLIAN A. HALL

Konjola is a medicine for the aged or the infant. Its 24 ingredients are the juices of roots and herbs, so right to the very source and root of ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Cleansing and stimulating as it goes, Konjola battles the very causes of the ailments it is designed to relieve. Just read what Miss Lillian A. Hall, 75 Roger Williams avenue, Providence, says about this new and different method. She says she Konjola Man at the Epstein drug store, 3-4 Scollay Square, Boston, and learn of hundreds of cases just like that of Miss Hall who said to the Konjola Man:

"I suffered most of my life with constipation, and I was run down in every way. I would get tired, too, for though I took cathartics every day the relief was temporary and inadequate. I had terrible headaches and every morning I got up tired and worn out. I decided to give Konjola a real trial, for I had heard so much about it. Well, in three weeks Konjola proved itself in my case. My bowels move normally and I feel like a different person now that my system is cleansed of poisons and impurities. Konjola is sure a real medicine."

So it goes; victory after victory when Konjola is given a chance to prove why it is the best known medicine in America.

The Konjola Man is at Epstein's —Scollay Sq. (Epstein Drug Co.), Boston, where daily he is meeting those who come to find out about Konjola and its powers. Konjola is sold also by all leading druggists in Boston and vicinity.

MAYOR'S NAME STILL LEADS TUBE LIST

The new traffic tunnel figures jumped around a bit today, but the designation, Curley Tunnel, for the new under-harbor passage, is still far in the lead, with also many other names containing Curley in some arrangement or other.

53 for the names submitted to The Tunnel Editor of the Boston Evening American run about 20 per cent Curley in one or another form.

LINDY'S NAME SURGES

The name Lindbergh—for the redoubtable Colonel, of course—took a surge today and got a foothold among the first 20 leaders, topping Hoover and Atlantic.

And still the mail rolls in and the supply of new and various names seems inexhaustible. Thus far three have been, for instance, 81 different ways in which he name Curley has been spelled.

THE RESULTS

The new lineup of the leaders, 20 in the last list of designations follows:

HONOR ROGER WILLIAMS

Providence, Feb. 5 (AP) The 300th anniversary of the arrival of Roger Williams in America will be celebrated this evening by the Rhode Island Historical Society here. Frederick Bernays Wiener will address the meeting on "Roger Williams' Contribution to Modern Thought."

In connection with this view of the great separatist's career, the society is publishing the results of a study by Dr. Lanier Kraut, the University of Washington, whose recent researches in England reveal Williams connection with and contribution to the English revolution of the middle 17th century which resulted in the execution of King Charles I.

Dr. Ernst ranks the founder of Rhode Island as the most important figure of his century, quotes authorities which credit him with being the source of the principles underlying the English revolt and tells the story of William's struggle for separation of church and state.

Lanier's Poem to Virginia Belle Recalls Old Romance

Macon, Ga., Feb. 5 (AP)—A yellowed manuscript whose ink still burns with the poetic passion of the days of swords and roses, of curtsys and crinoline, hung in the Washington Memorial Library here today.

It was Sidney Lanier's poem "To G H" written when he was 22 to Gihna Hankins, a belle of old Virginia. The manuscript was loaned to the local Sidney Lanier Memorial Association by Roland Ellis, Jr., on the 89th anniversary of the poet's birth.

The poem follows:

Thou most rare brown bird on thine Eden tree,
All Heaven-sweet to me,
Cometh thy song of Love's deep loyalty
And Love's high royalty
And Love's sweet-pleading loneliness in thee.

One one star yonder uttereth forth her light,
Her silver call to night,
Who, wavering between the dark and bright,
On cometh with timid flight,
Like one who hesitateth 'twixt wrong and right.

O, never saw a night so dark as I!
But thou hast sent a sinh
Of love, as a star would send a beam, to fly
Downward from out the sky,
And light a heart that's dark enough to die.

And so, O bird, and so, thou silver beam,
Let me forever dream
That I am night and thou a star, whose stream
Of light like love shall seem
Whose love-light through my dark shall ever gleam.

U. S. SALES DROP HALF-BILLION

Washington, Feb. 5 (AP)—Last year's declines in American Foreign trade were shown by Commerce department statistics today to have been largest in the commerce with Europe.

Sales of American products to that continent for the year were about $500,000,000 less than in 1929. The contraction was almost as great in American imports from Europe.

Imports from Asia, largely Crude rubber, dropped nearly $400,000,000.

Canada remained the greatest national customer of the United States in international trade generally for 1930, though the actual sum total of exports sent from this country to Great Britain was somewhat in excess of Canadian purchases.

LAME DUCK VOTE COMING SOON

Washington, Feb. 5 (AP)—The long-standing controversy overabolition of the lame duck session of Congress today was to be reopened for the first time in years before the House rules committee.

Legislative right of way was sought on the proposed constitutional amendment so a vote can be had in the House this session. Republican leaders have promised action after all necessary appropriation bills have been passed.

A resolution similar to the Gifford measure now before the committee has been adopted by the Senate. Its author, Senator Norris of Nebraska, has demanded House action as an alternative to an extra session of the new Congress.

Club for Jobless

A clubroom for the use of the unemployed will be established this week in a vacant store on Elm st., Waltham.

More than 800 persons are expected to attend the presentation of "Aschenbrodel" the German version of "Cinderella," tomorrow evening in Whitney Hall, Coolidge Corner, Brookline, which will be portrayed by young women of the German Club of Boston University's college of practical arts and letters.

Proceeds from the entertainment will be used to swell a scholarship fund which the club maintains for sending a worthy student to a German university for a year.

Roles will be portrayed by Hazel M. Swanson of Woodbury, as Cinderella; Pauline Grace of Worcester, as the stepmother; Clara A. Duemling of Dorchester, and Mildred K. Thelen of Lynn, the two sisters; Elinor Kinsman of Middleboro, the prince, and Anna V. Sandstrom of Arlington, as the fairy godmother.

The rest of the cast includes: Hazel G Johnson Nashua N H; Nellie Bratenas, Boston, Helen E Colley, Saugus; Elaine F. Haslett, Lebanon, N H.; Julia Holstein, Brockton; Elizabeth Rohl, Middleboro; Marian Poelaert, Boston; Pearl W. Rose, Milford; Pearl M Guenther, Webster; Genevieve H. Pinkos, Salem; Lydia N. MANY WOMEN BETTER FOR JURORS THAN MEN, SAYS JUDGE

COURT DUTY FOR SEX IS FAVORED

Woman Judge, Advocating the Passage of Two Bills, Says It Is Coming in the Bay State

Many women are far better fitted for jury service than many men, Judge Sadie L. Shulman, chairman of the legislative committee of the Massachusetts Council of Women, told the joint judiciary committee of the legislature today.

Judge Shulman was one of a number of prominent women who appeared in favor of two bills providing that women be made liable for jury service with certain exceptions.

The bills were filed on petition of Mary E. Judd, president of the Massachusetts Council of Women, and Mary T. Healy.

Mrs. Arthur C. Beach, Miss Mary L. Barrows, Dr. Helen I. Doherty, Miss Greta C. Coleman, Mrs. Mary Thompson and Mrs. Roger S. Warner favored the measures.

Judge Shulman said many men had joined with the women in their belief in the wisdom, equity and fairness of such a law. She said that 32 states now have jury service for women.

"Women are coming along and you can't stop them," she declared. "An evidence of this is the recent action of three colleges in declining to accept gifts under the will of former Atty. Gen. Pillsbury to combat feminism. Jury service for women is coming in Massachusetts."

Mrs. Lenia B. Cutler of Needham, mother of five children, spoke for the bills.

PARKER SAYS NEW YORK SHIP TRAFFIC IS UNECONOMIC

EQUAL BASIS FOR BOSTON IS URGED

Adjustment of Rates Would Divert Shipping to New England, He Declares

The heavy ship traffic in New York harbor was declared "uneconomic" today by George H. Parker, New York attorney, during testimony before examiners of the Interstate Commerce Commission at the Chamber of Commerce on Boston's fight for better port rates.

Atty. Parker urged that some of the shipping be diverted to Boston as an economic measure as well as a means of putting this city on an equal basis.

He was cross-examined today by Atty. Thomas P. Healey, council for seven railroads, after testifying yesterday in the Boston Interests to a report on rates in which he said other ports are favored over Boston.

"New York harbor at present has a tremendous volume of ship traffic moving through it, which, in my opinion, is uneconomic," he said. "Compared with it, the harbor of Boston is empty.

"There should be a very good reason for the commission to take that fact into consideration in considering rates that can put this city on a more equal basis.

"It should call for a general readjustment to bring shipping through the port of Boston rather than over the uneconomic route now followed by way of New York," he added.

He also testified that equal rates in the port here would stimulate business throughout New England.

Fishing Gear in Flames

FIRE SWEEPING through the one-story warehouse of F. J. O'Hara Co., on Northern ave., today, destroyed fishing gear valued at $40,000. Fire boats and land apparatus fought the flames. (Staff photo.)

Fishing gear valued at $40,000 was destroyed today when fire swept the warehouse of F. J. O'Hara Co., in Northern ave., adjoining the Fish Pier.

Huge nets, tackle and other fishing paraphernalia made ready fuel for the blaze that started from an undetermined cause.

Land apparatus and fireboats fought the blaze, hemming it in and preventing it from spreading to other buildings on the pier and Northern ave., after several employes vainly fought the flames and were forced to flee.

Employes of a machine shop that occupied half the building were also driven to the street.

Smoke and flame that could be seen on Summer st. extension and on the opposite side of the harbor attracted crowds to the scene, in the belief that the Fish Pier was burning.

Police were called from the South Boston station to straighten out the traffic tangle, as the pier was in the middle of its morning rush period.

672 PLANES TO PARADE OVER BOSTON

Maneuvers Here in May to Be Greatest Ever in United States

Boston will see the greatest air maneuvers ever carried out in the United States on May 24 and 25, according to an announcement made today by Hans Adamson, aide to F. Trubee Davison, assistant Secretary of War in charge of aviation.

On the night of the 24th, between 40 and 50 planes will sweep over Greater Boston in the largest demonstration of planes ever seen here at night. On the following day 672 army planes will give the city the most comprehensive demonstration of military air tactics ever seen here.

The planes basing here in Boston, numbering about 100, will arrive here Sunday, May 24. The remainder of the planes will arrive the next day.

Tentative plans call for separate attacks of pursuit planes on attack planes; pursuit on bombardment, and pursuit on pursuit during the show on Monday.

The planes also will put on their various formation flights Monday.

MINUTE MAN SERVICE

SENATOR WALSH FOR 5-DAY WEEK

A letter from U. S. Senator David I. Walsh favoring a five-day week for State and government employes was read today by Representative Julius H. Sobie before the joint legislative committee on public service today in support of his bill authorizing a five-day week for public employes.

In his letter Senator Walsh said, "The unemployment problem in this country is rapidly reducing itself to a problem of providing more jobs for our people. This can be done, in my judgment, by reducing the present six-day week to a five-day week. If this is done by the national and State governments at this time, it will be a fine example to private employers to copy. I feel very strongly that we must come to either a five-day week or a 30-hour week in order to provide the necessary jobs to keep people employed. For these reasons and many others it seems to me that the federal and State governments should lead the way during the present crisis."

Chairman Frank A. Goodwin of Boston Finance Commission spoke in favor of his own bills making it permissive for city, county and state officials to give a full Saturday holiday to workers in all departments.

"The question involved is the 5-day week," said Mr. Goodwin. "It's coming; it's got to come. A few years ago only radicals favored it, but now some of the leading thinkers of the country favor it."

W. K. IRVING IN NEW POST

W. K. Irving, recently appointed by Eastern Steamship Lines as vice-president in charge of operations, was the recipient yesterday of the well wishes of many prominent representatives of transportation and marine activities.

W. K. Irving

Mr. Irving was formerly connected with the Metropolitan Lines, which later merged with the Eastern Steamship Lines, and has had more than 28 years of steamship experience.

During the war, Mr. Irving was connected with the United States Shipping Board and for a short period with a coastwise transportation company, rejoining the Eastern Steamship Lines in 1923.

In August, 1930, he was appointed general superintendent of the company. His appointment as vice-president became effective February 1. His headquarters will continue to be at the company's main office at India Wharf.

There will be skiing, skating, hiking and tobogganing, with prizes awarded in each sport, and also indoor entertainment about an open fireplace, carnival dancing, plenty of music throughout the two days and a campfire get-together at midnight Saturday.

MUNRO REFUSES TO RESIGN

Refusal of Health Inspector Harold Munro of the Malden Board of Health to resign his office is expected to result in efforts of the board to remove him. As the position comes under Civil Service, the only method by which such removal can be brought about is through preferring charges against him.

Inspector Munro has been the storm center of the Board of Health for several years. Two years ago he was summoned before the aldermen on charges brought by a number of milk dealers. At that time he was completely exonerated and was backed by the Board of Health.

Chairman C. C. Burpee and Dr. C. F. Lynch of the board voted to ask his resignation and the other member of the board, Frank T. Waite, did not vote. His resignation was demanded by members of the city government, including Councillors Arthur Black, Max Rosenblatt and Abe Mogul and by several former members of the city government.

That charges are being considered was confirmed by members of the Board of Health today who said that the matter would be passed upon by City Solicitor Merton L. Brown.

OLD GOLD SPILLS THE BEANS IN BOSTON

Upsets rival brands with Sweeping Victory . . . in Ripley's latest Taste-Test

They held another "tea-party" at Boston the other day. "Down with the tyranny of habit!" was the cry. "Let's find out which cigarette really tastes the best."

From Back-Bay to the Fishing Docks, it was another Boston rebellion. Throwing brand prejudice overboard . . . more than a thousand Boston smokers compared the four leading cigarettes, with the brand names hidden.

They didn't know which was which. They didn't care. All they wanted was to pick out the best tasting cigarette.

At Lexington . . . modern Minute Men needed hardly a minute to give O. G. a 2 to 1 victory. At Bunker Hill, OLD GOLD'S cool, throat-easy quality completely routed the enemy.

"No taxation without representation" . . . said the Boston of long ago. "No throat-tax . . . and unlimited smoking joy," says the Boston of today.

CRASH CYMBALS FOR SOME HOME-GROWN PRODUCTS

WHILE THE TOM-TOMS thump and the trumpets toot for King Levinsky, let's crash the cymbals for two home-grown, bean-fed boys, Jack McCarthy, of the Roxbury McCarthys, and Lou Brouillard, of the Worcester Brouillards, who appear on the same card with the slugging Chicago fish pedlar in the Boston Garden tomorrow night.

McCarthy is a broth of a b'y, with dynamite in both fists, and of such rare fistic promise that two of Boston's leading managers, Dan Carroll and Johnny Buckley, both insisted on declaring themselves in on a "cut" of him.

Maeu Brouillard, bah gosh, she's going to make our good American citizens of French-Canadian extraction forget all about Ma'su Ovila Chapdelaine, otherwise known as Jack Delaney, Rapier of the North.

Nineteen-year-old McCarthy fists support a widowed mother and family. He has had two year's seasoning in amateur ranks. After one of his almost pure bouts he was rushed to the hospital and operated on for appendicitis. Since joining the pro's his choleroform punch has put a whole flock of rivals to sleep. He collides with Pat O'Flaherty, tomorrow night. While it lasts the lady will give a mighty good imitation of a shindy at an old-fashioned Pathron Day in County Wicklow.

Brouillard, a rugged, two-fisted 18-year-old fighter, who seems headed for the championship, was born in Three Rivers, Quebec, but came to Danielson, Ct., 15 years ago. Then he went to Worcester where he learned his trade of carpenter. Eighteen months ago he first donned the gloves and with such success that he now supports his invalid parents and six brothers and sisters.

Every Penny Lou makes at fighting he puts into his chicken farm. He hopes to add a few hundred White Rocks to his present flock by knocking Sergt. Sammy Baker for a row of chatteaux in Quebec, tomorrow night.

PACKING KEWPIE IN A NUTSHELL

TWO OTHER HOME GROWN products, "Bibber" McCoy and "Kewpie" Kilroy, will be seen in Paul Bowser's wrestling show at the Arena tonight. You all know "Bibber" He's one of Bowser's mat headliners. Many of you know Kilroy, too, but not in the role of a wrestler. He is making his mat debut tonight

"Kewpie" is the little short sawed-off, Roxbury-born and bred chap who you saw playing football for High School of Commerce, Dean Academy and Boston College from which he graduated in 1929. More recently you saw him playing professional with the Fitton A. A. and the University A. A.

Down by the sad sea waves in the good old summertime at Nantasket Kewpie is a lifeguard. He has been for six years. He has rescued scores from drowning. Maybe some of the readers are among those who Kilroy has pulled from the angry surf and pumped life back into.

Kewpie's sole wrestling experience was gained in High School and Y. M. C. A. Just how much of a grappler he is will not be known until he get his test against Tony Gust, the tough trial horse from South Boston, tonight.

Kilroy now is studying for a Master's Degree in the graduate school at Boston College. He's following Gus Sonnenberg, Jim Mc-Millan, Ed Geogan, Lee Wykoff and other collegians into the wrestling game in hopes of harvesting enough shekels to enable him to complete his education.

"ON YOUR MARK! GET SET!" BANG! AWAY GOES FLYING FIELD!

LOVETT LADD PESCOSLIDO CHANNING PORTER WATKINS DOW

A FIELD OF CRIMSON ATHLETES shot away under the watchful eye of Coach Eddie Farrell. How would you like to have this squad of stars to work on, Mister Track Coach? They are as likely a looking lot of sprinters as ever delighted any trainer. This is the height of the indoor track season and Harvard is well represented in all of the important track meets, including the coming B. A. A. and indoor collegiates. But Coach Farrell is not forgetting the all important annual outdoor intercollegiate title meet in the spring. Left to right across the starting line you see Lovett, Ladd, Pescoslido, Channing, Porter, Watkins and Dow. Watkins and "Pesky" finished first and second in the big sprint at last Saturday's big K. of C. meet.

Ottawa to Lose National Hockey League Franchise

By BILL GRIMES

Apropos to the announcement in these columns last Thursday that the Ottawa Senators were for sale and should be sold despite the daily denials by the Canadian capital press, President Foran has an offer of $100,000 for his club.

During the recent meeting of the National Hockey League board of governors the Ottawa Club sought financial assistance but their request was rejected

President William Foran, of Ottawa, endeavored to have the league adopt a new scale of percentages for road games and then attempted to negotiate a loan from the league which would make it possible for the present operations of the Senators to pay off their debt.

Ahearn Demands Balance Due Him

Realizing that Ottawa is a very marketable product, Frank Ahearn, former owner, has been demanding the balance due him. The Foran crowd made an initial payment of $50,000 and if Ahearn forecloses they will forfeit that sum Ahearn also endorsed the $11,000 note which was tendered to the New York Rangers for the purchase of Leo Bourgeault

The National Hockey League operates on an agreement that the visiting clubs receive five per cent of the gross receipts The Senators are a fine attraction in Boston

The Senators draw well against the Rangers, but are not so strong while engaging in contests with the Americans. They pack them in to capacity at the Forum, whether they are playing Les Canadiens or the Maroons and are fair attractions in Detroit and Toronto But naturally, they flop in Philadelphia, which city, incidentally has no more right in the N. H. L. than they have.

Ottawa Games Fail to Pay Expenses

When the Bruins, Rangers and Blackhawks play in Ottawa, their five per cent cut is not sufficient to pay for the meals to and from the Canadian capita. not to mention their railroad and hotel expenses. Even the two Montreal clubs have trouble breaking even on a trip to Ottawa, which is less than a hundred mile journey

Now Ottawa seeks more return for road games, but because the receipts to the Senators away from home would be so far out of proportion to those of the other teams, for engagements in Ottawa, the governors put their thumbs down on the proposition

Investors Eager to Eliminate Ottawa

In some Canadian quarters reports have been circulated that the American public was behind the move to take the N. H. L. franchise out of Ottawa. As the American hockey public has no financial interest in Ottawa which explains why they have no interest in the removal or continuance of the Senators in the Calder league

Instead, it is the owners of the clubs and those parties who have invested millions of dollars in the construction of such modern hockey emporia, as the Boston Garden Madison Sq. Garden, the Detroit Olympia, the Montreal Forum and the Chicago Stadium, who are anxious to eliminate Ottawa and place the club and franchise in some American city, preferably Boston or Cleveland where unbeatable returns would be made on the investment.

B. U. Five Will Play Middletown Quintet

An aggregation of nine picked basketball players will leave Boston late today for Middletown Connecticut where the Terrier quintet will meet the Wesleyan Basketeers in the College Gym nasium on tomorrow night

Pittsburg Cuts Football Practice

Pittsburg, Feb. 5—Pitt football practice at the University of Pittsburgh, extending over four weeks in past sessions will be cut in half.

Decision to reduce the period to two weeks was reached at a meeting of the University's athletic council. The council left to the discretion of the head coach, Dr. John B. Sutherland, the extent of spring practice, but the program also may be curtailed.

Petrolle, King Tut to Battle Again

IF You Don't Know—

Art Ross, Bruins' manager, is a 7 handicap golfer and is club champion at Marshfield . . . After losing four world's series in a row, there is nothing new about the National League adopting a new baseball . . . Alabama, football champion of the South, is leading in the Southern Conference basketball race . . . Dutch Leonard, once great Red Sox southpaw, is now playing exhibition golf in California . . . All the leading football teams that come here to play Harvard stay at the Belmont Spring Country Club . . . Hockey fans are the most rabid and partisan of all sport followers . . . Babe Ruth is considered the most difficult golf course in Greater Boston! Eastward Ho! the most difficult in the state . . . It is more than a quarter of a century since the National League season ended as early as it will this coming season, Sept. 27 . . . Francis Outmet, Jesse Guilford and Fred Wright have held the Massachusetts amateur golf championship for a total of 15 years . . . Guilford, incidentally, was nicknamed the "Negro Gun" by a Boston newspaper man . . . The National and American League balls are made by the same company . . . The only difference between them is the color of the stitches . . . W. N. Keynon and George Swasey of Stony Brook hold the record for competing in open golf tourneys. . . . The Garden gallery gods have named George Owen "Wall Street" . . . The credit for the goal when a hockey player knocks the puck into his own net goes to the last opponent that handled the rubber before the error . . . Both Boston ball clubs start South just two weeks from today.

CELTICS PLAY PROVIDENCE

Followers of soccer will flock to the Boston Garden tonight to witness the indoor contest between the Providences and Boston Celtic elevens of the American League.

Soccer fans, on the whole, are the most rabid fans in sportdom, and while there may not be as many present as at a Bruins' hockey match, it is safe to predict that there will be more thunder.

Providing conditions are right, the fans should witness a contest, replete with thrills and action galore, for there is no question as to the ability of the players involved and then there is the old rivalry between Boston and the Rhode Island city.

Durham, N. C., Feb 5 (AP)—Wallace Wade, Duke University four ball coach, today announced Freddie Shotton, All-America tackle at Alabama last fall, had been signed as freshman line coach at Duke.

Large Entry Forces Promoter to Set Up Two Rings

Due to the large number of entries in the finals of Diamond Belt amateur boxing tourney which will be held at the Boston Arena on Saturday night under the auspices of the Irish American A. C, two rings will be used so that the competition may be completed before midnight.

Never before in the history of boxing in New England has more than one ring ever been used, but the promoters feel that if the public can watch three rings at a circus they should be able to keep their eyes on two at a boxing show.

SEEKS NEW LAURELS

JUMPING JOE SAVOLDI will make his professional debut as a wrestler in Kansas City in three weeks. Daily the former Notre Dame football star works out at the Commercial Club gym in Los Angeles. Billy Sandow, manager of Ed "Strangler" Lewis, says no other pupil ever showed such alertness in assimilating the points of wrestling.

BATTERY A TO PLAY HARVARD

Battery A polo team, the 11 goal combination, led by the giant Tim Clark of Harvard of premier polo, football and crew fame, will start Saturday trying to catch up with the Harvard varsity trio, which is leading Class A with a record of three victories and no defeats.

The Battery, represented for the first time in the major division, is favored to win over Harvard this week and later against the 101st Field Artillery and 119th Cavalry.

If Battery A sweeps through its first three games as expected, March 7 will bring the Battery mallemen against Harvard both with undefeated records.

Former B. C. Star to Play With Portland

Arthur "Pat" Belew, former Boston College High and St. John's Prep star second baseman, has signed with Portland of the Pacific Coast League. Last season Pat put up such a splendid game with Richmond, Va., that he attracted attention of the scouts.

Grid Lectures Will Be Given to Malden High Players

By BILL CONNELL

Though the next football season seems far away, boys of Malden high school soon start preparations for the grid campaign of 1931 when they attend a series of 10 lectures, given by Head Coach Ed Goodreau at the high school.

Moving pictures and diagrams will be a part of these talks which Coach Goodreau hopes will help his boys when the battles of this fall come along.

The lectures will not be open to any boys of the school, for only the first assud, of about 35, will be invited to hear the instructions.

This splendid plan is the result of long preparation by Goodreau Such football activity might be called overemphasis by some, yet the boys of the school would disagree sharply with any such comment.

Invitations to attend the lectures are prized by the youngsters and have been eagerly sought by the boys.

The lectures will in no way interfere with track or basketball, which are the winter sports at Malden. The effect of the talks should be to give the Malden lads who may become good football players a better insight into the fine points of the game, enable them to enjoy footballl more and play it better.

Charley Dickerman's Somerville high basketball team is developing well now. The club was slow, starting, largely because Dickerman did not know he was to coach the court team until after the time when practice should have started. Nick Vitiello and Arthur Mahan are two of the good courtmen of Somerville.

Joe Gallo, Salem high basketball star, is back in the lineup after having been ineligible for the first half of the season. Gallo's play did not suffer by his absence from the game, for he was practicing all of the time. His work will make Glenn O'Brien's Salem five a more powerful team for the remainder of the season.

Despite the many handicaps under which he coaches track at Boston Latin, Charley Fitzgerald has built a strong track team. A gym which is absolutely impossible for running practice is a big draw back to progress in track for the lads of Latin Yet Coach Fitzgerald has brought the boys along well and the team is one of the good track aggregations of Boston.

EAGLES TO RACE IN NEW YORK

The Boston College one-mile relay team which defeated Dartmouth at the Garden last week sets out for New York tomorrow where it will contend in the annual Mid-winter games, Saturday night

The Eagles will be faced by the fastest opposition they have been up against for a long time, in Holy Cross, New York U. and Georgetown. Holy Cross's time last Saturday was just three seconds better than that turned in by the Eagles.

But Coach Jack Ryder is confident that his team will come through with a victory now that it has conquered Dartmouth one of the outstanding teams in the east.

This meeting of the Maroon and Gold relay with Holy Cross will bring together Bernie McCafferty and Donald Fleet, the rival speedsters who will be running the anchor legs on the teams.

McCafferty has been reigning supreme as the king of the collegiate middle distance men for the last two years. But followers of the Maroon and Gold are wagering that the Gloucester boy will take one of the wind out of his sails.

Bart Sullivan, Holy Cross track coach has so much respect for the ability of the new Eagle flash he has not entered McCafferty in the special race but is saving all his strength for the relay.

Babe Ruth Not Worried Over Change in Ball

New York, Feb. 5 (AP)—The prospect of having to hit a changed ball during the 1931 baseball season does not worry Babe Ruth at all, in fact, he rather likes the idea.

"Say, you can make that ball all cover and let the stitches stick out like grapevines and I'll still hit it," was the Babe's opinion on the recent changes in the pellet "I hit that ball when it was said to be dead, back in 1918 and 1919, and I smiled a lot of those 'dead balls a lot of feet

"The ball will go if it's hit. The good thing about the new arrangement is that a lot of poorly hit balls won't go so far. There won't be the percentage of flukes homers there has been."

POLAND ASKS RAMSEY TO BE COACH

Krynica, Poland, Feb. 5 (AP)—The Boston, Mass., Hockey Club and the Canadian six, known as the University of Manitoba Grads, co-favorites to win the international hockey tournament in progress here, were tied for the lead today after the second round games at five goals each.

Boston defeated the strong team from Sweden today 3 to 0 and the Manitoba Grads took Poland into camp by the same score In winning yesterday Boston and Manitoba both scored two goals

The tournament is a round robin among the six finalists, which also include Czechoslovakia and Austria, total goals to decide the winner

Boston took an early lead against Sweden today, Smith caging the puck soon after the start of the game, and Ramsey followed on with another goal after 11 minutes of play. The second period, which was scoreless, was bitterly fought, with Elliot and Anderson stalwarts defending the Boston goal.

Ramsey Scores Second Goal in Final Period

Ramsey made the American victory secure in the third period by again scoring, making the final 3 to 0

The playing of Ramsey so impressed the Polish officials watching the match that they have started negotiations to keep him in Poland as an instructor for the Polish team.

Lindsay was the star for the Swedish six, but the stout defense of Boston turned back his best efforts.

Poland started off briskly against Manitoba, scoring a goal which was disallowed. The referee's ruling seemed to disheriten them momentarily and before they could recognize it, their morale Canada had scored three times on them.

Wasson and Morris were the Canadian stars

HELEN TO TRY FOR U. S. TITLE

San Francisco, Feb. 5 (US)—An attempt to regain the national singles title in the women's tennis championships at Forest Hills, N. Y., next August will be made by Mrs. Helen Wills Moody.

Mrs. Moody won the 1928 singles title but did not defend it last year. She also said today that she would play in the Wimbledon Cup matches in the east, but that it was unlikely that she would go to Europe this year.

Boston Man in Title Figure Skating

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 5 (AP)—The skating championships of the United States and Canada today attempted to decide the North American figure skating championships.

Miss Beatrix Loughran and Sherwin Badger of New York, United States national pair champions, in third place winners in the 1930 world's championships, were the entry list from below the border. Jr. Lester Madden, Boston, also is entered.

Benny Friedman to Be Coach of Yale Backfield

WILL ADOPT NOTRE DAME SYSTEM

New Haven, Feb. 5 (INS)—According to unofficial word at Yale today, Benny Friedman, Michigan's former All-America star, will be backfield coach at the New Haven institution.

The Yale athletic board of control convenes on Monday evening. Guy Hutchinson of New York, its chairman, is known to be definitely in favor of signing the wonder football ace to a contract. Other members on the committee are also understood to have leanings in Benny's direction.

Whether Friedman will quit his affiliation with the New York Giants professional team, or whether he will continue to play pro football and coach at the same time, is not known.

Friedman made several trips to New Haven last year and instructed Yale's backs in the art of forward passing. He made a fine impression and Yale wants to retain his services.

With Friedman on the staff and with Adam Walsh of Notre Dame continuing as line coach, a distinctive change in Yale's offensive tactics may be noted next fall. The Notre Dame system will play a more important part in the Eli system in the future

Willie Kamm to Wear New Uniform

Chicago, Feb. 5 (AP)—The name of Willie Kamm is still on the Chicago White Sox roster and reports persist that it won't be there when the American League championship season opens.

Manager Donnie Bush will be in Chicago tomorrow or Friday and it is expected he will go back to work on a proposed trade with Cleveland, in which Kamm, who cost the Sox $100,000, would be exchanged for first baseman Lew Fonseca.

The Sox's chances for obtaining Fonseca, however, appear to depend on whether the Indians take Dick Morgan, who played first base last season when Fonseca was injured, into signing

B. C. Fencing Team Is Victor Over 'Y'

The Boston College fencing team won its second straight victory of the season by nosing out the fencers of the Providence Y. M. C. A.

Providence took the lead in the finals 6-3 but the Eagles came back to make a clean sweep with the epee, foil and saber matches evenly, giving the Maroon and Gold the match 9 to 6. Captain Do Daugherty was the star man of the day defeating four out of his five opponents

ROSTRUM TO MAT

NICK LUTZ in a strange setting. The former University of Southern California athlete learned all about Faneuil Hall, the Cradle of Liberty, in his school and college days. Yesterday he stood on the rostrum, from which many historical speeches were made. Tonight he goes on the mat with Jack Sherry at the Arena.

Passing the Puck

The Tigers are experiencing their toughest season and Eddie Powers has sent out an S. O. S. Unless they receive immediate re-enforcements, the Tigers will not make the play off, for the Argows are coming fast and Springfield and Providence have the other two places sewed up even at this early date.

Jim Linehan took hundreds of feet of moving pictures of the Bruins in action yesterday at the Garden. Eddie Shore put on a fall and a recovery for Linehan, which should prove one of the best of all time hockey movies.

Although Win Green was under the weather last week, he refused to quit his Bruins. Before leaving for New York, Win was very ill but he carried on and as sick as he was insisted upon caring for his ailing players

Jimmie Herberts, the former Bruin, is playing fine hockey in the International League. He has been right on the job all season and is now down to 167 pounds.

The Providence Reds will leave for Quebec City tonight. The Reds make annual pilgrimages to Quebec and are a fine attraction during the winter sport season.

The Art Ross puck will be officially adopted by the National Hockey League next season. It has been tried out in five games this year and came up to expectations Ross has been working on this new disc for more than two years.

Johnny Gagnon, the former Rhode Island Red right winger continues to shine with Les Canadiens. He had the honor of not only scoring the first Canadien goal of the season against the Hawks but of being mainly responsible for the Flying Frenchmen's long delayed victory over the Windy City outfit.

Sprague Cleghorn made a major leaguer out of Johnny Gagnon. When Cleghorn took over the Providence club, Gagnon did not speak "many English" and it was a tough job trying to convey ideas to the little Frenchman. "Peg" taught Johnny to keep his head, painting out that opponents who deliberately slashed him to get him put out of games. Gagnon was the bad man of the Can-Am circuit for at least three years. Now he is one of the best behaved players in the N. H. L.

Four Former College Stars on Wrestling Card

Four former university athletes will make their appearance on the all-star heavyweight wrestling card presented under the auspices of Paul Bowser at the Boston Arena tonight.

They will pit their skill, strength and knowledge of the mat sport against the old school of wrestling, and when the festivities are over the fans will be able to judge for themselves whether or not their style is appealing that which they have been looking on for lo these many years.

In the windup, which will go to a positive limit, whether or not it takes all night, will bring back Nick Lutz of Southern California, who made such a sensational showing against Pat McGill, the veteran Irishman, at the last Arena show. He will be pitted against Jack Sherry, the Ohio "Tornado," who swept all before him through Ohio and emerged champion of the Buckeye State

The spectacular victory of Lutz over McGill will live long in the memory of the fans who packed the Arena from stem to stern, and from the Pacific Coast after his victory was never before equalled in the Arena. Sherry, always popular with local fans, will have a tremendous following when the men shake hands for what may be a real Marathon. A victory each believes, will put him a step nearer to a chance at the championship held by Ed Don George and a battle royal is assured the fans, who already have shown their interest in the match through their rush for reservations

Wykoff to Meet George Vassell

The semi-windup will bring together Lee Wykoff, the former University of St. Louis star, and George Vassell, the giant Greek, in a one-limit bout. Wykoff has fully recovered from the injuries he received at the hands of Gus Sonnenberg at the last Arena show and is out to sweep Vassell off his feet in order to earn a return bout with the "Dynamiter."

Wykoff's own carelessness lost him the battle with the former champion, whom it appeared he had beaten until he left himself open for the flying tackle which sent him out of the ring and incapacitated him. Vassell has been coming along great guns and Wykoff's work is cut out for him if Vassel wrestles to the form that has made him famous, the former collegian is in for a rough evening

The debut of "Kewpie" Kilroy, Boston College professor and life saver into the ranks of professional wrestling will be watched with interest. Kilroy has gone about his preparation under the eye of mat experts and declares himself fit and ready to go the route with Tony Gust, a trial horse of no mean proportions. Students and alumni of Boston College already have reserved a large block of seats in order to be assured of vantage points for the fracas

The other bouts will bring Bob "Bibber" McCoy, Holy Cross star and Tony Rocco, the New York Italian together in a limit bout Frank Judson, former wrestling coach at Harvard, will make his first appearance in the East since his long reign of fame against Pat Demetra, the Greek Demon.

Santa-Hansen Go Called No Contest

Chicago, Feb. 5 (AP)—Any plans for building Jose Santa, giant Portuguese heavyweight, into a Carnera-sized attraction as a stand-still today, pending a meeting of the Illinois State Athletic Commission next Tuesday.

Santa, 6 feet 8 inches tall and weighing 239 pounds, and Knute Hansen, his opponent at the Chicago Stadium last night, were sent from the ring in the second round after Hansen had gone to the canvas four times, the last time apparently without having been hit. Referee Davey Miller refused to count, and declared the bout no contest. Both boxers' purse checks were ordered withheld.

Curley Here to See Londos-Dusek Go

Jack Curley, who heads the Curley-Londos wrestling combine which is fighting the Sandow-Bowser group, paid his first visit to Boston in a long while today. He is here in connection with next week's Londos-Dusek match.

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

Mr. Boston collided with Henry Lamar on Summer st.

"Hello, Mr. Boston," said Lamar,

"How are you packing on all the weight?" asked Mr. Boston, as he took a peek at Lamar's rugged frame.

"I weighed 194 pounds today," responded Henry. "I have been doing a great deal of hard work and believe I shall be able to retain the extra poundage.

"When I first started Jack Conway battling heavyweights, I weighed around 175 pounds. I have spent much time in the open air doing hard work. This has built me up.

"I confess I followed the example set by Gene Tunney. You know Tunney was at one time a light heavyweight. Nobody felt he would ever develop into a heavyweight. Gene lived outdoors at Speculator Lake, N. Y., in the summer and at Miami Beach, Fla., in the winter. Careful exercise enabled him to put on the weight that made it possible for him to win the heavyweight title from Dempsey.

"Tunney became a real 190-pounder. A man weighing 190 pounds is heavy enough to lick anybody in the world. Dempsey only scaled 183 pounds when he knocked out Jess Willard, while Sharkey was 188 pounds when he pounded Harry Willis into submission.

"I have a health class at 8 a.m. on Federal st. This work is also helpful to me.

Lamar Ready to Meet All-Comers

"You can tell the world, Mr. Boston, that I'm now ready to meet any heavyweight in the world. I will let the promoters pick my opponents.

"I have been doing considerable boxing with Ernie Schaaf. I regret Ernie is in the same stable with myself as I feel I could outscore him.

"There are plenty of other heavyweights around, however. I'd like to get a crack at Big Boy Kaysell, Harry Allen, King Levinsky, Joe Monte, Con O'Kelley or any of the other heavyweights showing here. Dick Daniels would also do.

"I talked with Damon Runyon recently and was highly complimented when he told me he thought I would prove to be a second Tunney. He said my development had been along lines similar to those which carried Tunney to the championship.

"I believe I have mastered the fine points of the game, and now have the necessary power in my body to carry out the orders from my brain.

"Perhaps some day you will be champion," said Mr. Boston easily.

"For the present I'd be satisfied to lick some of the best heavyweights who think they can fight," responded Lamar. "If I keep winning, the championship will take care of itself, won't it?"

Lou Brouillard Sought by Boston Managers

"I hear," said Mr. Boston, "that at least six Hub managers of boxers are flirting with Lou Brouillard, the Providence welterweight who has been tipping over the opposition. He looks like a fine prospect.

"Fred Doherty tells me the show business is doing very well, which should give some encouragement to the year old local ring promoters. Poor attractions have been the chief cause for the falling off in the attendance figures at the pro clubs. "There wasn't anything the matter with the size of the crowd at the international amateur boxing tournament at the Boston Garden."

American League Must Adopt 'Slower' Ball

By JOE CASHMAN

Any changes that may be made in the official National League ball this season will also be made in the American League ball for the very good reason that both are made exactly alike, except for the color of the stitches, on the same machines in the same factory

The National League didn't consult the junior loop before agreeing to a heavier cover and stitch on the ball because both organizations, at their winter meetings, suggested that the manufacturer attempt to make the again slower and agreed to give any new product a real trial.

If either league eventually become dissatisfied with the new ball, it can't do anything about it unless it can get the consent of the other to order further changes.

The manufacturer stated at the winter meetings that he didn't have any idea how he could make the ball slower without injuring the quality of it, but later he hit upon the idea of making the cover and stitches heavier, and the leagues could do little else but give their o. k. after having suggested a change

No Difference Expected in Number of Homers

Many of the club owners, however, are not at all certain that the new ball will reduce home run hitting at least 20 per cent, as the manufacturer claims. In fact, some doubt that it will make any noticeable difference in hitting.

Bob Quinn, Red Sox prexy, says he will not admit that a heavier cover will make the apple slower until such time, if ever, as the batting averages prove such to be the case.

The change in stitches he doesn't believe will help a bit.

It has not been made plain as yet just what change is to be made in the stitches. If they are made heavier, it shouldn't make much difference in the hitting but if they are raised, it will help the pitcher a lot and will undoubtedly cut down hitting considerably.

Smart leaders after a little practice will be able to do more tricks with the ball than can be done with emery, resin or spit.

The fans hope that the changes will reduce hitting, if they don't they will demand further changes. They have grown tired of seeing the fences shattered by almost every other batter who steps to the plate.

Sox to Open in New York on April 14

The Red Sox will play their first game in New York on April 14, according to the American League schedule, released today. Following the series with the Yanks, the Bosox have a three-game engagement in Washington before making their local debut against the Yanks a Tuesday Party on April 22

They will play the Yanks, Athletics and Senators here in the order named, hop to Philadelphia for four games and then make their first tour of the East. They will close their season in Washington on Sunday Sept 27

The Brewery flock received plenty of breaks from the schedule makers. They have 12 Sundays, 12 Saturdays and three holidays at home and will face the best clubs in the league on most of the choice dates

They will have the world's champion Athletics here for four days as well as on May 30 and will play the Macks in Philly on July 4 The Yanks will be their opponents on June 17 and the Senators on Labor Day.

Maine Fan Willing to Assist Marquardt

Bob Quinn today received a letter from an old fox raiser in Maine who is willing to go to Toledo for the summer to take care of Al Marquardt's silver fox farm, so that the latter can join the Sox.

The Sox prexy has forwarded the letter to the rookie infielder, who recently announced that he couldn't join the Sox unless he found somebody to care for his foxes during the playing season.

Bob also announced having received the signed contract of Russell Scarritt.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

Most golfers understand that at the instant the clubhead returns to the ball they are again in the same position they had in the address. You perhaps are not in precisely the same position, but it must be approximately the same. How many of you have ever thought of the position of your arms in that respect? At the instant the clubhead meets the ball your arms should be in exactly the same position with regard to the ball that they had when you started your back swing. In fast swinging, and as a result of lunging at the ball, or over anxiety to hit at the ball, you are likely to have your arms return to it in a greatly altered relative position. In the address your hands are approximately the same height from the ground. When you stroke the ball, you will also if your left hand is higher than it was in the address, and you will pull or hook if the right hand comes back higher than the left. This is why I have always cautioned never to let your wrists, or forearms, roll forward until the clubhead got into the ball. Be careful of that point

Title Contenders Must File Soon

Though entries for the New England sectional Olympic hockey tryouts were to have closed on Monday, Tom Kanaly, in charge of entries, has announced that he will receive entries from New England amateur teams up to noon today.

At that time, the New England hockey committee of the A. A. U. will meet to settle the final details of the elimination series which is to start tomorrow night at the Arena with a game between Northeastern and Boston University.

Fuller Plans to K. O. Bruce Flowers

Sammy Fuller, North End flash is planning to produce a knockout as quick as possible when he clashes with Bruce Flowers, the Ebony Ghost in the Argonne A. A. feature bout at the Boston Arena, next Monday night.

With one of the season's outstanding preliminary cards and with popular prices prevailing, it is expected that a huge throng will turn out.

The Flute

The transverse flute, incorrectly called the "German" instead of the Swiss flute, was known to the ancients. It was much improved by the French in the 17th century. The English flute was patented by Bainbridge in 1803.

Diphtheria Avoided by Care

—By DR. COPELAND—

DIPHTHERIA is a highly contagious disease, most prevalent among children. It is a preventable disease. It is a shame to have it included among the dangers of childhood.

Dr. Copeland

There has been a great reduction in the number of deaths caused by diphtheria. It is the hope and aim of all public health officials to eradicate this dangerous ailment entirely. This can be accomplished only when there is complete co-operation of the public.

This disease is caused by the diphtheria germ which finds its way to the nose or throat. There it multiplies in number. Its presence is shown by a gray membrane which may interfere with breathing.

The germs produce a toxin, a powerful poison. This is quickly absorbed into the blood stream, causing general poisoning of the system.

The germs of diphtheria may be transferred from one person to another by kissing. They may be carried in the spray produced by coughing, sneezing and talking. Drinking cups or other utensils used by an infected person serve as a common means of transmission.

The possibility of contamination by the germs of the disease is particularly great in crowded and congested communities. Moreover there are persons who carry these germs without knowing they have them. Such persons are spoken of as "carriers."

How can we combat this disease? Fortunately, we have at our disposal the knowledge of diphtheria "antitoxin." This is widely used in the treatment and cure.

Diphtheria may be prevented by the use of the "toxin-anti-toxin" injections. When this treatment is given, it enables children to go through life without contracting the disease, even though exposed to it.

By means of the "Schick test" we can determine whether a person is immune to diphtheria or will contract the disease. The procedure is simple and may be applied by any, physician or by the local health bureau.

If all our people would cooperate by having their children inoculated against diphtheria, this disease would soon disappear.

We rarely hear of cases of smallpox. It is indeed a rarity. Nowadays most students go through medical school without ever seeing a case of smallpox. At one time this was an exceedingly common disease and caused many deaths. Since the rigid insistence upon vaccination against smallpox this disease has become extremely rare.

Diphtheria is another disease which will disappear when we all help.

Answers to Health Queries

M. B. E. Q.—What causes psoriasis?

A.—What causes nose and throat to clog, especially in the early morning? I cough up black phlegm.

A.—Indiscretion in the diet is responsible for psoriasis. The diet must be corrected and, as constipation is an important factor in this, must be corrected by eating the proper foods.

—You may be troubled with nasal catarrh, which requires special attention.

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley

"THOUGH LOST to sight—to memory dear'" These are ghosts you are stalking at, dear sirs—ghosts of girls who used to wait in Peacock Alley only a few short years ago. Ghosts of legs, we should be saying—for the girls are still in Peacock Alley—but there is only a memory left of how they appeared, decoratively speaking, from the knees to the pretty shoesoles.

You might call this picture of a row of ghosts several tables beside "Though lost to sight to memory dear!"

Such as 'Gone are the days!'" "Gone but not forgotten—dear me, no!"

Some of us do not regret these ghosts this ghast picture that we all can remember if we shut an eye or rows of feminine legs wherever we looked! For also the custom of dresses WAY above the knee had its drawbacks. It should have been a matter of fashion ONLY for the very young and the very lucky in the matter of walking accessories! There were plenty of unluckies! If you remember.

No, those of us who were novice to line and mass suffered in Peacock Alley and on the subway. It was not all a joy to the eye. And even men, women believed were line sensitive, got indicted to the perpetual parade of unlovely underpinnings and welcome with a perked-up interest the toe-tapping ankle and dainty foot, with the rest veiled mystery.

Lost to sight as they should be, save for fleeting moments to memory dear and as the dearer for being hard to view.

NELL BRINKLEY.

TIGER HEART

By Robert Terry Shannon

HIGGINS glanced up and saw her; for an instant she thought he looked startled, and then he moved quickly away about the business of clearing the table.

Garson came toward me, half smiling.

"Higgins tells me," he said, quietly, "that your mother, very carelessly, keeps a rope of pearls worth around $10,000 in her bedroom. Really, Miss Calvert, this places me in a very difficult position. Here is Higgins, an old friend of mine, and here you are, also a friend. Poor Higgins—but a strain he has been under."

Connie looked at Duke Garson nonplussed.

"Mother's pearls! Why, how could Higgins know where she keeps them—"

"It seems he's in the confidence of a maid," Garson put in. "Oh, the maid is quite honest, but poor Higgins is only trying to be. He used to be on Tenth ave., in fact, he was a waiter in doc's Place."

Trusted Higgins

"But I can't imagine Higgins being dishonest," Connie said aghast. "He's been with us two years, and he had splendid references from the employment agency."

"Of course—they always do, Higgins, though, isn't a bad sig, really. So far as I know he is fairly honest, but right now he is in the throes of a great temptation. I suppose I lost his job for him by telling you this, but I'm afraid I was forced to violate his confidence."

"I'll discharge him at once," Connie said, decisively.

"And your next butler will probably steal the pearls instead of dreaming about them," Garson told her. "If your mother must keep valuable jewelry in the house she should at least have a safe built in the wall. I'm quite sure Higgins couldn't manage a combination. If his services are satisfactory otherwise you might keep him without too great a risk. Don't put temptation in his path. I'll give him a talking to. I'll tell him that if anything is missing from this house I'll hold him responsible. He might not be afraid of the police, but he'll be in mortal terror of some of the gangsters. I could send after him if I wanted to. If you want to keep him here in service I'm fairly sure that I can fix him so he'd rather touch a live wire than anything on the place that doesn't belong to him."

Connie regarded Duke Garson with astonished eyes; it was almost impossible for her to believe that he could be so likeable and yet have such terrifying associations. His background, at some earlier time in his career, must have been one of refinement; yet he had, apparently, abandoned all that was safe and secure to become, in a not very admirable way, a tower among warped and inferior people. Perhaps it was ego, a passion for distinction, even though he was distinguished only among felons. With difficulty, however, she told herself that this last was probably unfair to him.

"Nevertheless," she said, "I think we had better get rid of Higgins."

"If it makes you feel more secure, it would," Garson advised her. "I'm sorry to see him lose a good place, but he can get another quite easily. But have your mother lock up her pearls. I wouldn't worry her, either, about Higgins. I'll speak to him again and everything will be quite all right."

His manner was so confident that Connie felt a large part of her first uncertainty vanish. If Garson told her that things would be all right her confidence in him was already such that she felt it was. No other man could have given her quite the same assurance.

"I think I hear him moving around in the dinin room now," she said. "Mightn't it be a good idea for you to talk to him now?"

"I'll stroll in and have a chat with him," Garson assured her, and rose.

While he was gone, Kitty and Jim returned, flushed with the peculiar excitement that was generated by the rapid progress of their attachment.

"Duke's here!" Connie told Kitty. "We talked on the telephone and he wanted to know how you were and I invited him up."

"Duke!" Kitty's eyes sparkled. "Oh, that's great, Connie."

Jim Tracy's face clouded.

"Look here, girls. If you mean that Duke Garson chap, don't you think it's carrying things a little too far to have a man like him coming up here? I'm pretty broadminded, but this fellow is right out of the gutter—and what kitty needs, now, is to forget all about that sort of thing and that kind of people."

Connie looked quickly at Kitty to observe the statement's effect; she was—a girl so enamored that she was willing to attach pro found significance to anything that fell from the adored one's lips.

"Oh, gee, I hate to think that was about him, Jim, but—" She turned in perplexity to Connie. "I can't high-hat Duke, Connie, but maybe Jim is right—in a general sort of way—"

"Of course, I'm right!" Jim Tracy declared.

"Of course, you're right!" Connie found herself defending Garson fiercely. "I wouldn't be surprised if he wasn't more wonderful than all of us put together! Mother likes him, and I like him, and he stood by Kitty when she didn't have a friend on earth!"

Tracy looked at her with narrowing eyes.

"Oh, ho! So that's the way the wind blows! I thought he was ambitious to be Kitty's boyfriend. That's the way I figured it. What's the matter, Connie, falling a little bit for this Tenth avenue sheik yourself?"

The color rushed to Connie's face and she was thankful of the poor light on the veranda that concealed it. Her temper was beginning to rise against Jim Tracy. By an effort she kept from saying anything at all. Kitty, with quick intuition, divined her sister's feelings.

"Oh, Connie, don't mind Jim. He's likely to say something right now. It's funny you've known him ever so long, and I've known him only a few days, but it seems like I've known him forever. Connie, want me to tell you something?"

Connie looked at them both without speaking.

Simpy Crazy

"Oh gee, it's great!" Kitty exclaimed. "We've just got to tell you we've decided that we're both simply crazy about each other! We've been up in the clouds all day and we're still floating around."

Something seemed to twist inside Connie's breast sharply, painfully, and at the same time exquisitely pleasant. They were up in the clouds and crazy about each other—and she, too, was up in the clouds and crazy over Duke Garson. The pain, as suddenly as a flash of lightning ripping brilliance across the dark clouds.

Connie's realization that she had fallen under Duke Garson's spell came upon her so suddenly that, for a moment, she was almost dizzy. It was as though a virus had entered her blood and produced a queer feverish sympoint that robbed her of her cool intelligence.

Utter love fell upon Jim Tracy and it occurred to her, poignantly, that he had never made her feel like this.

"My God, what's wrong with you, Connie?" said Kitty looking quickly at her sister's strained, startled face. "You look like you've seen a ghost, or something."

Kitty's voice, her manner, her grammar, all in an instant struck harshly upon Connie's heightening reek of Tenth avenue like like mud. The girl, at that moment seemed infantly amiable incapable of understanding even Jim Tracy, standing there with a half-smile, was an insensate figure, no more important than a clothes pole dummy. Nothing they said or did now, could reach Connie; it was as though she possessed a bewildering secret of a significance too impossible to be shared with anyone. To herself, even, it was at once than a vague, alarming pull—yet it was potent enough to reduce all else to insignificance.

"Lordy, lordy! I think she's actually fallen in love!" Jim exclaimed. That the trouble, Connie?"

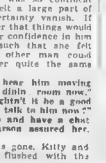
Better to Let Boy Alone if He Shows No Interest

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX.

I am 16 years old and a junior at high school. Am considered good looking and have a snappy clothes. At school I have been quite popular and know many fellows. There is one whom I am very much interested in and he is in two of my classes, but I can't seem to make any progress with him. All the fellows I know have been to my house and have been introduced to my parents, and I know they would approve of this one. It seems that after I have seen this fellow I am in a daze. Why? I read your column and am sure it has helped many. I hope you will be able to help me.

WAITING PATIENTLY.



Beatrice Fairfax

Dear Waiting Patiently: Whenever a young man shows an inclination to be let alone, the best thing to do is let him alone. Some fellows are funny that way and prefer to make all the advances. I know ignoring him and being sensible is not the easiest thing to do, but believe me, it's the wisest.

Forget Him

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl 24 years old, and I have been going with a fellow for the last 6 months. I love him very much. He has told me he loves me too, but the last three weeks he has acted quite differently. When he sees me he doesn't speak to me and it hurts me quite a lot. I don't know why he does it. I love him so much, dear Miss Fairfax, that I would give anyone to do, and what can I do to win his love? PUZZLED

Dear Puzzled: There is nothing you can do to win his love back. Just forget him, and make other friends. It will hurt for a while, of course, but the surest cure for a broken heart is another boy friend. Try it and see!

He's Actin; Coy

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

There is a young man of 21 who owes a lot to me. He has told me so, but one time I didn't care for him and would decline every time he asked me out. Still he kept at me. Now I think the world of him and never refuse him time because I care for him but I don't let him know it head on, the way he is going to California. I asked him and he smiled and said, yes, but hadn't planned on it. I asked when he was leaving. He said he wanted to go just for a trip. I asked him if he would write to me. A letter by to me and he said he wasn't saying goodby to anyone, but would write to me. A. C.

Dear A. B. C.: I don't just understand what all the difficulty is. You like the young man, there are no parental obstacles, and still you must act coy and shy and generally difficult. If you like him and want to be friends, why not act nicely and accept his invitations? Of course it would be all right to correspond if he goes away. I think, however, that the planned trip may be merely a "stall" to see what you will do or say.

Beauty Box

KEEP AN eyebrow brush in your makeup box and use it. A dusting powder left in the eyebrows is a beauty misdemeanor. Remove it with a brush and dip the brush in brilliantine before using. Eyelashes sometimes catch powder; they should have a sweeping too. Wide hairs and drying outside the corral of the eyelashes, should be plucked out.

Keep cuticle lifted away from the finger nails. That practice will ward off hangnails which are not only painful but subject to infection.

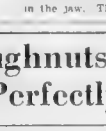
Doughnuts Must Be Perfectly Fried

By MARTHA LEE

Organizer and Conductor of New England's Largest Homemakers' Club of Over 32,000

ONE OF OUR CLUB members said the other day she thought that I did not approve of doughnut making. I had given no recipes for them lately. I do approve of them when they are properly fried which usually means that the temperature of the fat must be right and they must be drained on brown paper.

Here are some recipes that I am sure you can use successfully.



Martha Lee

CRULLERS

NEW ENGLAND CRULLERS

2 eggs, 1 cup milk, 1 tbsp. melted butter, 2 cups flour, 3 level tsps. baking powder, ½ tsp. ground cinnamon or nutmeg, 1 cup sugar, ½ tsp. salt. Beat the eggs until light and mix them with the milk and butter. Sift together the flour, salt, spices and baking powder; add the sugar and blend the two mixtures. Roll out, cut into rings and fry in hot fat till golden brown. Drain well and dust with sugar.

CRULLERS NO. 2 1 egg, butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1 cup milk, 3 cups flour, 1-3 tsp. salt, 3 level tsps. baking powder 1-3 tsp. grated nutmeg.

Beat the butter and sugar together; add the beaten eggs and milk, then the flour, salt, baking powder and nutmeg sifted together. Roll out, cut and fry golden brown in deep fat. Drain and sprinkle with sugar.

DOUGHNUTS—3 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 tsp. salt, 3 tbsps. cooking oil, 1 cup sour or buttermilk, 3 cups sifted pastry flour, 1 tsp. baking powder, ½ tsp. soda, ½ tsp. mace or nutmeg.

Thoroughly mix all but five ingredients. Sift together flour, baking powder, soda and spice, and add to first mixture. Mix thoroughly but lightly, and roll out on lightly floured board. Cut with doughnut cutter and fry in deep, hot oil. If sweet milk is used omit soda and use 4 tsps. baking powder.

NUT DOUGHNUTS—1¼ cups sugar, 4 tbsp. shortening, 1½ cups milk, 2 eggs, 4 tsps. baking powder, 1 cup chopped English walnut meats, 1 tsp. vanilla extract, 1 tsp. lemon extract, 1 tsp. salt, flour to make a soft dough.

Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, and eggs well beaten. Sift dry ingredients and add alternately to egg mixture. Roll out as soft as can be handled. Cut with cutter and fry in hot fat. Heat fat until crumb of bread becomes golden brown in 60 seconds.

RAISED DOUGHNUTS — 1 cup milk, ¼ yeast cake, ¼ cup lukewarm water, 1¼ tsps. salt, 1 cup sugar, ½ cup shortening, 2 eggs, 1 tsp. grated nutmeg, flour.

Dissolve yeast cake in lukewarm water. Scald milk and cool; then add yeast, half tea spoonful of salt and flour to make a soft batter. Set in a warm place to rise. Cream shortening with sugar, add eggs well beaten, remainder of salt and nutmeg, add to yeast mixture with enough flour to make stiff dough; let rise again.

When risen, make into small balls and place in a greased pan to rise. When right, drop into plenty of hot fat and cook from 4 to 5 minutes till doughnuts are done. Drain on soft paper and dredge with powdered sugar.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

P. S.—Don't forget to sharpen up your pencils and send in all your recipes using maple syrup and sugar for the second big contest. There is $100 in cash prizes for the lucky winners. Send all recipes to The Maple Producers' Contest Editor care of Martha Lee.

GERMAN COFFEE CAKE

2 cups flour
½ teaspoonful nutmeg
1 teaspoonful salt
1 teaspoonful baking powder
1 egg, unbeaten
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoonful cinnamon
½ cup milk
¼ cup shortening

Sift dry ingredients. Work in shortening with knife. Add eggs and milk. Stir until smooth. Pour into two small round square pans, or one large oblong one (8 inches by 12 inches), rubbed with shortening. Cover with the following mixture: ¼ cup shortening, one cup brown sugar, 4 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, a teaspoon salt. Blend ingredients with fork. Spread generously on top of batter. Sprinkle with one cup of coarse nuts. Bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven.—Miss Gladys Smith, Charlestown, N. H., Box 183.

BUTTERSCOTCH MERINGUES

In the top of a double boiler scald one cup of milk, stir in three tablespoons of cornstarch with one cup of cold milk, stirring until cornstarch is dissolved. Then stir into the milk in the double boiler and add ¼ teaspoon of salt, stirring until smooth and thick. In a saucepan melt two tablespoons of butter; in it cook one cup of brown sugar, stirring until sugar is soft. Stir the sugar into the cornstarch mixture. Beat two egg yolks until light. Add a little of the hot mixture to the eggs before adding the egg to the hot mixture in the double boiler. Turn into individual baking cups and cool. Beat two egg whites dry, beat in four tablespoons sugar. Put into a pastry bag and pipe onto the cooled butterscotch mixture. Place in an oven at 300 degrees and a golden brown.—Mrs. M. R. Nickerson, 54 Spear st., Quincy.

CREAM SPONGE

1 package vanilla custard powder
1½ cups hot milk
2 layers sponge cake 8 inches square
½ cup cold milk
Large egg
Juice and rind of one orange and powdered sugar.

Dissolve the powder in the cold milk. Add the hot milk and stir until it comes to a boil, remove from stove, add egg yolk, cook two minutes longer stirring constantly. When cool spread between layers. Make an icing with juice and rind of orange and enough powdered sugar to spread.—Mrs. T. H. CAMPBELL, 878 E. Fourth st., South Boston

WHOLE CRANBERRY SAUCE

One quart cranberries, two cups sugar, one large cup water, boil 5. Pick over and wash berries well. Put in kettle and bring to a boil. Pour boiling water over them. Let stand twenty minutes, covered to keep steam in. Pour this water all off. Put in two cups granulated sugar and add one large cup boiling water. Cook very slowly and the cranberries will be tender and whole in the delicious syrup delicately colored. (Do not boil).—MRS. E. H. HUSSEY, 9 Rockwood st., Hyde Park, Mass.

Rockefeller Interested In Pensions

Standard Oil's Plan Sets Example Industry May Follow

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Feb. 5—That humane executives are becoming keenly alive to the importance of providing for employes after they are too old to work is demonstrated by the pension plan arranged by Standard Oil of New York with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

B. C. Forbes

More and more corporations are giving serious thought to old age pensions. An increasing number of companies have been instituting them and extending their pension plans.

Such plans, however, have not always worked out satisfactorily. In the early days they became too heavy; in other cases the companies fell on evil days and underwent reorganization which drastically changed or eliminated pensions. Too often the mistake has been made of underestimating the growing cost with the passage of time.

I have heard it said by a supposed authority that one of the very largest companies in America has such a pension plan and that the day will come when pension payments will absorb all the profits and leave nothing for the stock holders.

• • •

By dealing with a strong insurance company on a carefully planned basis, Standard Oil of New York places its whole pension plan for its 45,000 employes on a solid foundation. The main features, it will interest employers and workers throughout the country to learn, are:

Starting January 1, 1931, men are to be retired at full pension at age 65, on pensions roughly equal to 2 per cent of their average previous salary, multiplied by the number of years' service.

The company sees three-fourths of the cost, the employes one-fourth.

Participation is optional.

On reaching retirement age, an employe may apply for the pension or he may be retired by the directors at their option. If he continues in service he receives no credit for the additional service nor makes any contribution to the pension.

The plan provides against loss as the result of accidental injuries or permanent disability, and also carries a death benefit. Unlike, in effect, insurance which the employe receives without taking out a policy, he receives a certificate from the Metropolitan which, should he leave Standard Oil, can be converted into any other type of insurance, except term insurance.

In case of dismissal, the employe receives back the entire amount contributed to the fund.

After 25 years' service, the annuity becomes the employe's absolute property and even if he leaves the service he receives the benefits of the plan as soon as he reaches retirement age.

Should the plan be discontinued—this right is reserved by the company—all annuities previously earned shall continue in force.

The whole subject of providing for wage earners in their old age has heretofore received less attention in this country than in European countries. The frequent boast here has been that Americans love to take care of themselves, that they cherish their independence, that pensions savor of charity and that workers prefer to be paid high wages without any deductions whatsoever so that they may spend or save their money as they see fit.

This attitude toward industrial life has not worked out ideally. The main trouble has been that too many workers have chosen to spend all their pay and have finally had to fall back on others—family relations, private charity or public support.

Since the Standard Oil workers are to contribute one-quarter of the cost of their pensions, they need have no feeling that their pensions will represent charity.

• • •

I had a talk the other day with John D Rockefeller, Jr., on the relations between corporations and their employes. Mr. Rockefeller's interest was aroused by the strike among employes of some of the Rockefeller properties in Colorado 18 years ago, and ever since then he has devoted much time and thought—and money—to the problem of establishing equitable relations between corporations and their workers. As a result various enterprises in which he is interested have gone farther than most companies in instituting "industrial democracy" and in making it possible for workers to provide for their declining years.

• • •

The writer long ago foresaw—or thought he foresaw—that the time would inevitably come when either industry would have to take care of its own or the politicians would step in and do the job presumably inefficiently and wastefully with money taken from the pockets of taxpayers. Nothing has happened to alter that view.

If industry is wise it will bestir itself and tackle this ever increasing and but inescapable problem before it becomes too late.

HARD STUDY FOR COMMISSION IS ASSURED

By FRANK H. MELOON

Another Washington commission is in the making, but the blame for this one cannot be placed on the broad shoulders of President Hoover. The Senate agriculture committee has reported a resolution which would set up a commission to study the causes of fluctuations in commodity and security values in order that remedies may be brought about. Economists for many years have been seeking to determine the causes mentioned, but it cannot be said their efforts have met with much success. It is doubtful if a political commission can solve the problem, but hard study for the commission is assured.

Herbert L. Pratt

Herbert L. Pratt, chairman of Standard Oil of New York, established a new record for employe benefit when he added this week to the insurance and pension plans involving $100 of his company's workers. Many millions of dollars are involved. Employes and their dependents are protected against death, accident, illness and permanent disability and provided for old age.

• • •

Mr. Pratt, who comes from an old New England family, has retraded the paths followed by his father in humanitarian work. His father established the Pratt Institute of Brooklyn, which has given many poor boys "a chance." He established the Mansefield (Conn.) Training School. Mr. Pratt years ago as a vacation place for needy youngsters. Mr. Pratt was related at Ex-President Coolidge's alma mater, Amherst.

• • •

Prof. Samuel E. Morison of Harvard, quoted as saying he did not believe Paul Revere's ride to Portsmouth N. H., has evidently not been "drawn" by the attractive picture that has brought many thousands of tourists to the scene of one of the earliest dramas of Colonial fighting days. A few years ago Prof. Barrett Wendell of Harvard and Portsmouth could have cited Prof Morison on the interesting story of Paul Revere's early ride.

• • •

Signs along the highways bear paintings of the mounted equestrian of the 1774 model. The accent of the fort sesame inspired by Revere in the mile on his ride to Portsmouth close to the site of one of the Granite States earliest capitol buildings, the former one-time summer residence of Edmund Clarence Stedman, famous author, poet, the only eminent poet who was also a stock broker. By the way, a member of the Boston Stock Exchange is well known in poesy's allied field of art with a studio in Paris.

• • •

William Dean Howells, who was known as the "dean of American literature," Thomas Nelson Page Mark Twain and John Fox, Jr., were some of the eminent residents of the section who knew of Paul Revere's 1774 ride many years ago. Mayor James M Curley of Boston well informed in history, wrote about the Fort Williams and Mary affair several years ago.

• • •

Times have changed since a Boston newspaper editorially declared we were paying too much attention to the Boston trade in New England and too little to "real industry." Our historic shines are invaluable assets in attracting our annual quota of money bringing tourists whose expenditures yearly total considerable sums.

• • •

The Charles E. Danforth expelled from membership in the New York Stock Exchange today is by no way related to Wilfred Danforth, widely known as "the big Boston bear."

• • •

This Rockefeller story is worth repeating. A radical once wrote to the young Rockefeller with the request that he divide his huge fortune among the people.

Mr. Rockefeller replied:

"Your suggestion is interesting, but hardly practical. However, to me your mind is open on the subject, so am enclosing a check for $2.27 which would be your allotment, if I acted on your proposition."

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Wall Street belief today was that a trading market is to be expected for the immediate future, despite Washington affording the main influence. More aggressive group work will be encouraged when supervisors indicate that congressional activities will not be too disrupting, but the utmost caution is necessary as quick setbacks are likely to follow unexpected bad news.

Prices for Which Stocks Are Tipped

Activity of the pools can often be somewhat closely measured by the tips heard in the Street. Here are some of the prices, as gathered today from various sources, to which stocks were tipped by pool interests this week to sell: Radio, 17; Westinghouse, 90; Loews, 36; Montgomery Ward, 35; United Corporation, 25; Montgomery Ward, 25; Foster Wheeler, 75; Electric Auto Lite, 65; Electric Power & Light, 53 to 55, and Consolidated Gas, 100.

The following were tipped without specific prices: Eastman Kodak, Du Pont, Ingersoll Rand and United Aircraft. With Eastman services came different stories of important new processes—one of a high speed camera and film, another of a new type of container.

It was said the new film was expected to take place that now used in the motion picture industry, as it is said to be several times faster, cheaper and more efficient.

Copper Fabricators Cut Their Prices

Further cuts in the price of copper are not expected to be of great importance. Wall Street authorities think the red metal is today around the lowest level it is likely to reach despite light demand.

General Cable Corporation, National Electrical Products Corporation and Anaconda Wire & Cable Company today reduced their quotations for wire and brass products to a 9¼-cent basis for copper. American Brass Company has not reduced its copper prices as yet, that level, they still being at the equivalent of 9¾ cents a pound for copper.

Industrial News Mostly Favorable

Except for the downward revision of earnings estimates for late 1930, the industrial news of the day was favorable. General Motors gave a good account of itself, in reporting earnings for the last quarter of the year and declaring the regular quarterly dividend. The stock was bid up slightly in spots most of the session today, dropping off fractionally.

Big Bear Leader Smith Sells Steel

Bernard E. Smith, one of the recognized bear leaders, today returned to the floor of the Stock Exchange after a fortnight's absence and immediately started offering Steel common in large blocks, presumably to floor traders. Smith sold 10,000 shares of Steel during the first hour, attracting the attention of the day's other floor traders. Steel broke to new low ground on the move.

Industrial Alcohol Moves Downward

The Industrial Alcohol moved downward today. With the stock paying 36 a year and 1930 earnings announced as $3.10 a share, there was more talk about the dividend

Short Covering in Canada Dry

Short covering has kept up Canada Dry since the publication of the unsatisfactory earnings for the final quarter of 1930. There was some liquidation after the results became known, but scale support seemed to come into the stock on the recessions and time and buying in the issue was based on the theory that the end of prohibition is still a bullish factor.

Some of those who purchased at the time have been taking profits on the rallies of the past few days. In some quarters it is said that there are also long orders in the market now for the bottom of last week and if these are reached the supply should increase. Bears have not been selling the stock in the last few days despite the recovery

Scale Support Is Given Blaw-Knox

Blaw-Knox reacted very little when the market eased recently due to the fact that there has been scale support on the recessions and offerings have been limited. This is one of the companies which did quite well last year, despite the acceptance of many other companies identified with the steel industry.

The company has a large and diversified line and its products are used in most industries. Up to about a year ago the market was mainly in Pittsburgh, but there are prospects of more active sponsorship now. The stock exchange as soon as general market conditions improve

McKesson & Robbins Is Better Bought

There has been better buying in McKesson & Robbins at times recently. It has been based on the view there is a good demand for drugs just now because of illness in many sections of the country and this should reflect favorable earnings for the first quarter of this year.

National Steel's Showing Good

Preliminary figures on National Steel confirm the prediction made recently that the company had earned its dividend on the common stock in the final quarter of last year with a balance to spare. The results were equal to 39 cents a common share compared with the dividend of 30 cents paid in the final three months. This is an unusually good showing and makes National the outstanding exception among the larger steel companies, all of which felt the effects of adverse business conditions in the period.

Results for 1930 were equal to $1.05 on the average number of common shares outstanding during the year. These reflected only moderate returns from the $25,000,000 Great Lakes plant at Ecorse near Detroit, at which operations were started on a small scale late in the year. During 1930 National virtually completed a $42,000,000 construction and improvement program at its Wierton, West Virginia and Pittsburgh plants.

Bear Squeeze in the I. T. & T. Planned

Reports were current that sponsors of International Telephone & Telegraph would take advantage of the sharp semi-weekly rise in shorts to inaugurate a campaign on the constructive side of the market. In this respect, it is pointed out that the bort interest in International Telephone is of rather large proportions with the bulk of recent pressure coming principally from floor traders. Operations of the company, however, have been on a satisfactory basis, it is said, but those close to the affairs of International Telephone & Telegraph do not believe that the current year will be sufficient to cover dividend requirements unless some unexpectedly adverse foreign developments occur. Incidentally, officials indicate that the company will declare the regular quarterly dividend at the coming meeting.

Quiet Selling in Anaconda

Although Anaconda held up relatively well in the face of a further reduction in the price of copper, it was apparent that quiet selling was taking place on the rallies and this was attributed to well informed predictions that copper prices would be reduced to approximately 9 cents a pound within the near future. Recent price reductions have failed to stimulate demand for the time being, and trade advices indicated that little new buying was encouraged by the further cut. The general trade view, however, important interests in the red metal would do well to view the "long term" prospects with more confidence.

Pool Working in Electric Power & Light

Pool sponsoring Electric Power & Light is reported to have considerable difficulty in attracting a following. From time to time, the pool is having to absorb increased offerings from those close to the company who accumulated the stock at substantially lower levels

Sears-Roebuck Bought on Scale

Action of Sears-Roebuck recently indicates that is attracting a better class of buying on reactions. The buying is largely of the "investment" character and is based on the prospects of an improvement in business during the latter part of the year. Operations of the company recently have shown a slight improvement in sales, the percentage of decrease in sales has narrowed. In addition, those close to the company feel that it will benefit from the operating economies introduced by the management during 1930.

Warner Bros. Group Active

Activity in Warner Bros. reflected renewed operations from the group which has been identified with the current campaign in this issue. In connection with the increased activity the point was current that developments of a favorable nature would be announced shortly. At the same time, it also was reported that Raskob and his associates were showing renewed interest in the stock and were adding to their holdings. Earnings of the company during the latter part of 1930 were disappointing to those closely informed express the view that some improvement may be expected to develop in the present quarter.

Grant Sales Show Gain for Month

New York, Feb. 5 (AP)—W. T. Grant Co. reported January sales of $4,110,165, an increase of 8.83 per cent over $3,776,451 reported for the corresponding month of 1930. Sales for the fiscal year ended Jan. 31 were $47,198,274, an increase of 8.5 per cent over a total of $43,502,119 for the preceding fiscal year.

Grape Juice to Pay Dollar as Extra

Westfield, N. Y., Feb. 5—Welch Grape Juice Co. declared an extra dividend of $1 a share, in addition to its regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common, payable Feb. 28 to stock of record Feb. 16.

PRICE CHANGES IN BOSTON ARE MIXED

Price changes were mixed in today's trading on the Boston Stock Exchange.

Gillette sold up over a point with short covering reported continuing. Utilities Equities common rose a point and the preferred gained over a point.

Edison secured a fraction. Point or more losses appeared for American & Continental, Bell International, General Electric, Eastern Gas & Fuel and Anaconda

U. S. Smelting preferred sold up fractionally. Atchison and American Telephone were off over 2 points.

Eastern Massachusetts issues were inactive. Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway company reports it operated 19,214,502 car miles during 1930, against 18,587,132 miles operated in 1929. During the last quarter of 1930, car miles operated totaled 4,878,340 compared with 4,633,414 in the corresponding quarter of 1929.

Directors of Magma Copper meet next month for dividend action, and indications are that the regular 50 cent quarterly will be declared. Magma still is rich in cash and a small deficit in low grade copper ore will not be serious. In fact, some companies are losing money.

Prairie's Profits Are $3.61 a Share

Independence, Kan., Feb. 5 (INS) —Net earnings of the Prairie Pipe Line Co. and subsidiaries in 1930 was $14,637,625, or $3.61 per share, the company announced today. Earnings in 1929 were $5.62 per share.

Ability to Resist Is Shown by Business

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

New York, Feb. 5—An incident in Washington, D. C.—the suspension of a locally important real estate mortgage house—raised an issue which is of interest to investors throughout the country.

Apparently, mismanagement was facilitated by the fact that the security issuing house itself acted as trustee under the mortgage agreements. This practice is an isolated one among mortgage houses. On the other hand a reputable Wall Street houses of issue almost invariably appoint independent trusts. Companies as trustees for security issues. Usually, the difference is academic and unimportant, but where there is mismanagement or chicanery the lack of an independent supervising trustee deprives the investing public of important safeguard.

M. S. Rukeyser

No generalizations about securities are invariably true, but the lack of an independent trustee in an issuing house does cause investors to stop, look and listen.

In the Washington situation it is to be hoped that the trustee relieved the real estate collateral behind mortgages without at the same time paying over the funds received to the holders of real estate notes outstanding, which were secured by the mortgages. The lack of an independent outside trustee evidently left a loophole for mismanagement, if not worse.

The quiet strength in the stock market since the middle of December recalls a similar rally a year ago.

Will history repeat itself?

Unless there are future excesses, probably not, because the economic setting is different. A year ago business had only turned down mildly from the boom peak. The recession was destined after midyear to turn into a depression of maximum severity.

The present rally comes after business has gone as far down the chutes as previous statistics record it is therefore unlikely that comparable bad trade news is ahead. Security prices, moreover, have shown an ability to resist further reaction for six weeks, and there is hope of gradual improvement through the year, with the prospect of normal business next year.

With the recovery likely to be irregular and slow, there is little invitation for speculative recklessness, which would only serve to retard economic revival. There is justification for a revaluation of stocks on the basis of demonstrated average earnings, and reasonable near term prospects. The outlook is for a distinctly selective market, with room for issues of companies which have shown substantial earning power.

• • •

Harris Creech, president of the Cleveland Trust Company, in analyzing prospects, wisely points to the need of more buying. Mr. Creech said:

"It is not a question now of producing goods so much as it is a problem of producing buyers. We are passing through a depression that is world wide in scope and some may derive a measure of satisfaction by comparison because we may be better off than the rest of the world, but this has no lasting benefit, as prosperity cannot be confined to one state or territory for any great length of time.

"Though the present depression has lasted now something more than a year and a half, during which time a greater amount of goods has been consumed than has been produced. Gradually, production and distribution will become better balanced.

"I look forward in this district to the beginning of a gradual improvement of business in the Spring of 1931."

• • •

The National City Bank does not believe that the acute depression of the closing months of 1930 will be reflected fully in a downswing of corporate profits. The bank says:

"Despite the bad results for the late months of the year, it seems likely that business profits will make a better showing than usually anticipated for a year of deep depression. The fact that business held up so well during the early months of 1930, coupled with the fact that generally moderate stocks of merchandise enabled business men to hold down inventory losses, has served to offset the effects of low volume during the third and fourth quarters."

Fog Halts Sales

London, Feb. 5 (AP)—Today's financial sales were postponed, owing to fog.

COPPER OUTPUT SHARPLY OFF FOR YEAR

New York, Feb. 5 (AP)—Production of copper throughout the world during 1930 showed a sharp drop from figures for the previous year, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reports.

Computing the output on the basis of the copper content of blister copper or its equivalent, the bureau found 1930 production at 1,769,635 short tons, against 2,106,856 tons in 1929

Production in the United States dropped to 820,000 short tons last year, compared with 1,131,641 tons in the previous year.

World production of refined lead in 1930 also showed a decrease, amounting to 1,538,961 short tons, against 1,944,234 tons in 1929. Refined lead produced in the United States amounted to 615,036 short tons, against 716,840 tons in 1929

Output of zinc throughout the world last year amounted to 1,064,704 short tons, against 1,623,739 tons in 1929. Production in the United States totaled 504,412 short tons, against 831,601 tons in the previous year.

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

Many State st. brokers contend that there has been a tendency to overemphasize any drop in industrial activities for this year through unwise comparisons with the first months of 1930.

Comparing a period when a slow bottom was reached to be in the making with one that was stimulated by the efforts of the public to forestall a decline is not good judgment and does not prove that conditions are not better.

• • •

The conservative element realize that the big effort to stave off in the present quarter is that results will show improvement over the final period of 1930.

They reason that business is now starting its climb to make up the ground lost since the relatively good first quarter of last year and that it will be advantageous to make purchases of those equities whose earnings will hold up while the business slump is in getting under way.

• • •

The term "depression proof" has been given scant attention in State Street since the fall of 1929, when all securities fell under the force of liquidation. Yet Woolworth is more than meeting up to its title.

The stock has moved in a 14-point range for over a year and is now selling at the highest point in that period, the statement of its president that the 4½ per cent gain in sales for the month of January over last year, is more than half due to old stores, seems to augur well for the immediate future.

• • •

The good news that has been made public recently is generated by one source that pleases the old time trader, the merchandising units. He sees in the pickup of retail sales a sure sign that the consumer has loosened his purse strings and knows that the manufacturer has no goods on hand to supply to the trade he expects to the industry forced to curtail production in order to catch up with demand.

Chapman Valve's Splitup Approved

Stockholders of Chapman Valve Manufacturing Co. approved plan for split-up of common stock on a seven-for-one basis and increase of the stock from $100 to $25 per share, and also to issue $500,000 of preferred stock, proceeds to finance the new steel foundry and steel valve machine shop addition which went into operation last month. The new stock will be offered to stockholders at par ($25 per share) on a basis of one new share for each six held

$27,325,000 Bond Issue for Chicago

Chicago has asked for bids on $27,325,000 of bonds which will be awarded Feb. 11. Chicago board of election will offer $2,500,000 bonds due Feb 1, 1933 to 1935 and $25,500,000 revolving fund bonds due from 1936 to 1940. City may issue shortly $37,750,000 tax warrants and $3,000,000 water bonds

Purchase by Cities Service Is Favored

Investment banking firms which headed Richfield Oil Co. of California bond issue syndicate in May, 1929, have issued statement expressing belief that under existing conditions best interests of holders of Richfield securities also would be served through its acquisition by Cities Service Co.

STOCKS DRIVEN DOWNWARD IN WALL STREET

New York, Feb. 5—Having permitted bulls to rule the stock market for three days, bears today dropped selling orders which jolted the list out of its narrow trading area into a substantial decline.

The meager advances of the past three days were largely lost, as prices skidded back 2 to 6 points.

BONDS' TONE IS FIRM

The market remained merely a professional trading affair, however, for bears were no more successful in dislodging general selling than bulls had been able to inspire any extended buying.

In the meantime, the improved tone of the bond list was well maintained, which was regarded in Wall Street as of more significance than the fluttering of stock prices.

U. S. Steel slipped back 3 points to its low point of the new year. Westinghouse and Columbian Carbon lost about as much, and shares losing 2 points or so included American Telephone, Bethlehem Steel, American Can, Macy, Underwood Elliott Fisher, Willys, Nicholson, Norfolk & Western, American Water Works and Byers.

Issues showing wider losses, averaging from 4 to 6 points, included U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Auburn, Eastman, Allied Chemical and Lambert.

A few specialties were higher. Crucible Steel and Curtiss Publishing gained about 4 points in a few transactions, and Baldwin moved up more than one.

SELLING FOR BEARS

Most of the selling seemed to be for short accounts, and while it was inspired by the lack of encouragement for bulls in the week's trade news, it was also prompted by the weakened technical position of the list.

The more ambitious bears had covered their commitments ahead of the week-end, with the amateur short interest considerably reduced, the list lacked the cushion of support supplied by short covering. A prominent bear trader, who had been out of town for a fortnight, was back in Wall street, and was reputedly an active seller.

Chemical issues were influenced by further reductions in the prices of their products, notably carbon black and sulphuric acid. Prices were irregular, but appeared to be well sold out, as reports of gasoline rates cutting in Denver and Portland, as well as dividend cuts by Standard of Nebraska and Ohio Oils had little influence on the market for these shares.

The chain store sales reports for January continue to compare favorably with the preceding January than December sales comparisons with like months a year previously. Grand Silver reported a January gain of nearly 2 per cent; others fairly favorable reports by Woolworth, Kresge and McCrory.

With the rate of chain store expansion greatly reduced last year, comparisons mean more than they did. The General Motors statement had no influence on the market.

Credit conditions were unchanged. The weekly bank statements showed that the Federal Reserve Bank's gold stock actually gained slightly, although the Bank of France again showed a large addition to its yellow metal base.

Larger Earnings Seen for Motors

A consistent demand for General Motors is making itself apparent even in the present indecisive and hesitant market, according to E. A. Pierce & Co., who say in market advices that a long range estimate puts General Motors earnings this year at $3.50 per share, which compares with an estimate of $3.17 for last year. As the largest automotive security, General Motors was selected as an underlying equivalent of Fundamental Trust Shares, a fixed investment trust sponsored by E. A. Pierce & Co., because of its high standard of management and financial structure.

Bank of England's Reserve Is Lowered

London, Feb. 5 (AP)—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes, in pounds: total reserve decreased 3,763,000, circulation increased 2,862,000, bullion increased 899,000, other securities decreased 2,042,000, public deposits decreased 9,469,000, other deposits increased 7,613,000, private reserves decreased 1,797,000, government securities increased 3,044,000.

Rolls-Royce Has Executive Changes

Springfield, Feb. 5—W. E. Hosac, vice-president in charge of sales of Rolls-Royce of America, Inc., has resigned. Harry C. Beaver, vice-president and treasurer, has also resigned, effective March 1. John S. Inskit, New York office sales manager, succeeds Mr. Hosac. The name of Mr. Beaver's successor has not been announced.

Transamerica Plan for Change Denied

San Francisco, Feb. 5—Reports that changes in capitalization of Transamerica Corp. are impending met with comment by Elisha Walker, chairman of the board, that no consideration has been given any such plans and that such reports are without foundation.

Jersey Standard Is Listed in 'Frisco

San Francisco, Feb. 5—San Francisco Curb Exchange announced that Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey's 23,418,965 shares of common capital stock would be admitted to trading today.

CURB MARKET GAINS CHIPPED BY SELLING

New York, Feb. 5—The first selling of any consequence to appear on the Curb this month chipped into the recent gains today, but failed greatly to expand trading activity.

The market's steady but slow rise since Monday had weakened the technical position and offerings by the bear faction found the leaders ready to act. There was little stock forthcoming, however, and for the most part the losses were held to fractions.

The upturn in the utilities in recent sessions left them open to profit taking as well as to professional operations for the decline and such issues as Electric Bond & Share, United Light "A," Middle West Utilities and Brazilian Traction were heavy.

Active industrials sagged. Weakness of nonferrous metal prices prompted some selling of Noranda. Ford Limited slipped off about a point. There were small recessions in Fox Theatres "A," Royal Typewriter, G. Smith, General Aviation and other miscellaneous shares.

Technicolor, Irving Air Chute, Deere and Associated Rayon preferred displayed a fair degree of firmness.

Vacuum turned over in some volume, recovering an early loss of a point and making fractional progress above yesterday's close. Other oils were steady.

Bond Market Has More Price Gains

New York, Feb. 5—Additional gains were made in today's bond market. Celerity with which government securities have recovered since the upswing began Tuesday showed no signs of slackening and every issue in the group sold at good fractions above the previous close. The advance in two days combined to wipe out every point or the loss suffered by Treasury issues in the perpendicular tumble taken last week.

Allis-Chalmers Net on $2.86 a Share

Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co.'s preliminary report for 1930 shows a net profit of $3,604,609, equivalent after dividends on the 1,258,400 shares of no-par common stock outstanding. This compares with $5,530,886 for year 1929, or $3.44 on similar per share basis. In 1928 the net profit was $2,933,-909.

THE MYSTERY OF GERALDINE

By ANTHONY ABBOT

lived for many years in that house. In fact, he was born in another part of the city, the same block, just across from No. 244, where Elwell, the bridge expert, was mysteriously murdered. Some day I shall describe the singular rooms contained in that quiet and pretty little dwelling. The "weapons" chamber, the room where Thatcher Colt conducted his own original researches into "ballistics," his prison room but all these things played their part in the detection of subsequent crimes. Tonight we were led to the library of Thatcher Colt—a vast, immense room running the entire tretch of 150 feet on the third floor and shelving a personally selected collection of more than 15,000 books on crime and its related topics more than half of which would not be found together in any ordinary library in the world.

Waving us to comfortable chairs, Thatcher Colt retired. Dougherty and Hogan looked around them with an air of suspicion and bewilderment. These very glances seemed to say that Thatcher Colt could not be a practical man, with all these books in his possession. Presently, the commissioner reappeared, wearing a dressing gown of strong, dark silk, a flowered pajamas. From a covered recess in the library wall, a small alcove above a table, he drew a tray on which reposed glasses, and a bottle of old port. Withdrawing the cork, he called our attention to a filmy crust of scales of tartar on the top, the beswing of a rare old wine.

"In this xerophilous land," said Thatcher Colt, "there is not much more wine than this, gentlemen, your health!"

We all felt very solemn and important as we drank that precious liquor. It warmed the inner lining of my soul. Then, leaning back in his chair, Thatcher Colt resumed:

"I must begin by explaining to you that this is wholly an extralegal proceeding. I must also make that perfectly clear to Maskell. He has the right to decline to have anything to do with these experiments."

"What kind of hunk have you fallen for, Thatcher Colt?" as he asked the question, Dougherty almost hummed the words, while his hands spread out on his knees, seemed itching to get hold of Maskell and pitch him into a cell.

"Two things," replied the commissioner. "The first is this:"

On a table, at his right hand was an object covered with a cloth of green serge. Lifting this, Colt disclosed a bulky affair—a drum-like electrical instrument.

Queer Machine

"What in hell is that?" mocked Dougherty, his hands in his pockets, as he leaned over at a rakish angle and surveyed the machine quizzically.

"It is called a pneumo-cardiosphygmometer," answered Thatcher Colt.

Dougherty blinked in overdone astonishment at his friend. The district attorney was a well-educated man, but for so long had he defied the public pets of roughnes and readiness that he had almost convinced himself he was an illiterate.

"A what, Mr. Commissioner?" he purred, with such incision that I was glad I regretted the absence of an audience to laugh at his comedy.

"It is commonly called a 'lie detector,'" explained Thatcher Colt.

Dougherty clapped his hands together and laughed immediately.

"Have you fallen for that piffle?" he cried. "My God, you'll be using Nero Wolfe next. Bought on your own next. What is the police department of the city of New York coming to, I want to know?"

Thatcher Colt remained imperturbable.

"You are in ignorance of the facts, Dougherty," he commiserated, gently. "This machine is in almost daily use in the Illinois state penitentiary at Joliet. Moreover, it is employed by the police of many other cities—it has been used in more than 5,000 criminal cases. Properly used, Dr. Cal., police department above."

Dougherty sniffled in audible contempt.

"Whoever got up such a fool machine as that," he asked, shaking his head heavily.

"It is the invention of one of many old friends, Capt. August Vollmer."

"I've heard mention of him somewhere," conceded Dougherty, with a grunt. Capt. Vollmer is one of the foremost criminologists in the country. He was the police expert whom President Hoover's commission on law observance and enforcement. He is also a professor of criminology at the University of Chicago. Capt. Vollmer has told me, more than once, that he has never seen a real failure in the use of this amazing instrument."

Dougherty again shook his head, staunchly refusing to be impressed. But his curiosity was aroused.

How It Worked

"How does the fool thing work?" he asked.

Thatcher Colt lifted a set of leather-covered plates on a chain and Dougherty studied them attentively.

"These plates enclose the suspect's chest," explained the commissioner. "And this rubber tube goes around the arm. Both lead to the drum there, to which electric writing pens are attached. Then you question the suspect. His reactions to your questions, that is, his respiration and blood pressure are registered by the pens on ruled paper from a revolving drum roll within the box. This makes a complete graph or chart of the suspect's emotional reactions under questioning."

Dougherty made a comical face. "I don't like these new-fangled notions."

"It's not new-fangled," answered Colt patiently. "The lie detector was first used for criminological purposes more than 20 years ago. But that was only the beginning. The blood-pressure record is more recent."

"And you actually think this contraption will help us in breaking the tale of Doctor Maskell?"

"It will get us the truth," insisted Thatcher Colt. "I have no hesitation in saying that I consider this little box, and the other lie-detector which we may have to use later tonight on the doctor, the two greatest steps forward in criminological work since the adoption of the Bertillon system and the finger-print identification."

"Well, you'll have to show me," said Dougherty, lighting a fresh cigar, sitting down and leaning back.

"Very well," said Thatcher Colt. He opened a door in the rear of the room and led in a good-looking young man, slender and serious.

"Let me present Mr. Carl E. Leonard, one of the assistant State criminologists for Illinois. Mr. Leonard flew here in one of their departmental airplanes, at my personal request, just so that we could go through with this test. Vollmer recommended Mr. Leonard to me as an expert who could get the best results out of the machine. He has been a special technique of its own."

Childish

"I think it's childish," said Dougherty frankly. The young expert from Chicago only smiled and nodded his head as if he fully understood the District Attorney's skepticism. Thatcher Colt pressed a knob on the edge of the chair which registered its signal in some distant part of the house. By the time Colt had re-lighted his pipe the door was opened and two uniformed men led in Doctor Maskell.

With the wraith of his familiar smile playing over his pale and haggard face, Doctor Maskell glanced at the table on which the lie detector was disposed.

"Do you know what that machine is?" asked Thatcher Colt. Doctor Maskell's face expressed manifest contempt.

"Fake scientific apparatus," he jeered. "I've heard all about it. It is just about as scientific as the Abrams' blood detector machine. I can guess what it is by the looks of it."

Again the blonde young man smiled.

"It is recognized in the New York Department," explained Thatcher Colt frankly. "So you do not have to submit to its use. Nor can you be bound in any way by any conclusions we may arrive at by its use. But it may break your story and give us clues by which we can finish our case against you."

"Yes, certainly," acquiesced Doctor Maskell with magnificent indifference. I saw the look that passed between Dougherty and Thatcher Colt. Plainly the doctor's readiness only increased the District Attorney's suspicions. Doctor Maskell, in his opinion, like many another criminal, regarded himself as a superman. He was such an egoist that he felt confident that he could beat the machine.

It took very little time to adjust the apparatus to his chest and bared arm, as he sat in his shirt sleeves. Then Thatcher Colt began asking again the same questions with which Maskell had been battered for so long. They came, one after another, in a rattling fusillade. Always the suspect only time an answer before the next question was fired. For the first little while—certainly, for the first hour—the results would not be regarded as important. The unusual circumstances, the danger of Maskell's position, might easily make him nervous, and produce a jumpy chart, however innocent he might be. But Thatcher Colt knew that this state of preliminary fear would pass away.

False Security

The subject of the lie detector is soon lulled into a sense of false security. As soon as he thinks he is giving a fine account of himself, he becomes more the master of his emotions. Then, and not until then, the records on the card become important indications. For an hour Colt talked to Maskell calmly about his journeys—the usual old story of giving out the Christmas presents, returning and meeting the mysterious woman at the office door. But after that first hour, the tone, the pace the very accent of the questions changed. The voice of Thatcher Colt became brittle, harsh commanding, with a undertheart of malice in its tones. He stood, towering above the doctor, as if he would by grasp the lightning of the electric chair. The very air of the room became tense and charged.

"What are you most afraid of in life, Doctor Maskell?"

"I am afraid of nothing."

"What are you most ashamed of in your life?"

At this apparently simple question, we could almost hear the agitation of the electric pens, recording on the running drum of paper the heart and blood secrets of this erect and defiant man.

Both Dougherty and Thatcher Colt were studying the tape-like stream of paper emerging from the drum with the tell-tale graphs drawn upon them. Until this moment, the tracings had shown only debatable and indifferent variations, but a totally different result was obtained to the latest question. It had caused tremendous excitement in the suspect. The spirit of this mysterious physician.

Up shot the graph of the heart line and with it leaped the diagram of the blood pressure. Why? Doctor Maskell hesitated and pondered his answer while the Police Commissioner and the District Attorney walked in growing interest and astonishment.

NEWS OF THE PORT OF BOSTON

By JAMES J. DELANEY

The new M. S. St. Louis, Hamburg-American Line, will make a special departure from Boston to Queenstown, Cherbourg and Hamburg on July 12, it was announced by port officials in Boston.

The Boston port authority stated that the sailing of the St. Louis from this port was another indication that Boston is returning to its position as one of the first ports in the country.

The St. Louis has already made herself popular in the Boston service in connection with two special sailings which she made from this port, although she has never been in the regular Boston service. The forthcoming sailing is in the nature of an experiment to determine whether she will be used regularly in this service.

A cabin liner, the St. Louis is one of the most modern cruisers operating the Atlantic carrying passengers. Rooms are equipped with running hot and cold water. Public rooms include an excellent smoking room, dining room, lounge and writing room.

HUB REPAIRS

The United States Shipping Board steamer West Kyska, which was crippled at sea when her bridge was carried away, arrived here yesterday to be towed to the port of Boston for repairs, according to a telegram received by the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

The West Kyska is about 375 miles east of Boston, according to latest reports. She is being towed by the S. Sacp of the United States Shipping Board and is making seven knots an hour with the Coast Guard Cutter Champlain in convoy.

OPPOSE FUEL TAX

The Boston Port Authority announces that it will oppose Senate bill No. 219, which provides for a tax on fuel bought for ships in the Port of Boston. The bill would place a tax on gasoline and oil purchased for marine use similar to the existing tax on these commodities bought for automotive use. Gasoline and oil business in the port would suffer, according to the board. Due to the fact that at the present time many of the trans-ocean travelers, which use oil fuel, refuel at this port, the proposed tax would be a decided detriment to the oil business, which has become a big item in the port business.

BOSTONIANS SAIL

Bostonians were prominent in capacity passenger list which sails for Plymouth, Cherbourg and Hamburg on the S. S. President Roosevelt of the United States Lines. Eleanor Hoomer, R. M. Appelton, master of the fox hounds at the Myopia Hunt Club; G. Harrington Fiske and George W. Ochs-Oakes were booked. Little Joyce Gillin, five-year-old granddaughter of Herman Bernstein, United States Minister to Albania, who recently passed a week in Boston, made the trip accompanied by Andrea F. Kraknik, general agent of the United States Lines in Albania.

CHINESE EXCLUDED

A board of special inquiry of the United States Immigration service at Boston excluded three Chinese who were discovered hiding aboard the M. S. Silversandel upon her arrival at this port Monday. The three aliens left for the Orient when the Silversandel sailed from here. The United States District Court has an officer of the case under indictment, charged with conspiracy to smuggle aliens into the United States in violation of the immigration laws.

HUB MAN GETS JOB

Award of the contract for raising the ocean tug Richmond, which was sunk in the Delaware River about 25 miles below Philadelphia, was made to Capt. Alfred Bersch of Allston, according to advices received today in this port. Capt. Bersch is a member of the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. The Richmond is about 375 miles east of Boston, according to latest reports. She is being towed by the S. Sacp of the United States Shipping Board and is making seven knots an hour with the Coast Guard Cutter Champlain in convoy.

RAISE IN PRICES

Light receipts recorded at the Boston fish pier caused a jump in fish prices. Eleven arrivals brought in small catches. Poor weather on the fishing grounds was attributed by officials at the local exchange for the poor showing. The records for the start of the week, when more than one million pounds was recorded, was nullified by the decreased receipts of yesterday.

Our Fine High Schools

If all we read were true, we would be forced to the belief that the Boston public schools are the worst instead of the best in the United States.

Let us for the moment absorb some of the self-confidence of California, Florida and the West, let us face the facts as they are and let us abandon these cat-and-dog fights which demean our reputation and which diminish our stature in the eyes of the world.

The intimation that English High School ought to be abandoned or curtailed either because it is rich in antiquity or because it supplies a high standard of education which the children of other schools in the city are deprived is ridiculously inconsistent on its face.

This school supplied education to Pierpont Morgan, Chairman Albert H. Wiggin of the Chase National Bank, Charles Hayden, of Hayden, Stone & Co.; Admiral Selfridge, the first cadet to receive a diploma at Annapolis; Admiral John Halligan, President Edwin P. Brown of the United Shoe Machinery Company, Clarence W. Barron and a host of others who won world-wide reputations in their professions and business avocations.

Since 1821 it has held first rank among the High Schools of the United States.

It is one of the few schools whose certificates are accepted without doubt or misgiving by the colleges and universities of the Nation.

It is graduating 250 well-trained young men to our colleges annually and the remaining 450 graduates are taking high place in the commercial and educational life of the country.

Not five years have elapsed since a distinguished committee including President Lowell of Harvard and Judge Michael H. Sullivan surveyed the Boston school system for two years and declared without reservation that the major schools especially had maintained their extraordinarily high academic standards.

If this is antiquity, let us have more of it.

If our Boston boys struggle for admission to English High and if our girls seek to receive their education in our famous Girls' High School let us not curtail these fine institutions, but let us strive to elevate our other schools to their pinnacle.

We shall continue to criticise the features of our civic life which are palpably and errantly wrong, but we cannot bring ourselves to join in this hysterical and unsound clamor against such splendid organizations as the English and the Girls' High Schools which are tributes to the memory of Horace Mann and which are monuments to the educational status of Boston.

Trifling in Nicaragua

Full Facts Are Wanted

Apparently "a search for the truth" about conditions in Nicaragua, recently started by the Senate under the leadership of Senator Johnson of California, is bringing results.

Already it has brought Minister Hanna and Gen. McDougal, commanding the marine training mission, from Managua to Washington—summoned home by the Secretary of State for consultation.

Before these officials return to their posts they should be given an opportunity by the committee on foreign relations to testify fully and frankly regarding the recent course of events in Nicaragua.

On New Year's Day the American people were shocked by the killing of eight more of their marines by bandits that have long infested the mountainous jungles of northern Nicaragua.

Formerly a few large bands of bandits were active in the mountainous jungles of northwestern Nicaragua. Latterly, these bands have broken up into smaller groups which are operating OVER A MORE EXTENSIVE AREA THAN EVER BEFORE.

President Moncada has not kept his promise to President Coolidge to organize as rapidly as possible a native constabulary of sufficient strength to police the country.

And meantime nearly 1000 American marines, in addition to those engaged in training a native police force, ARE STILL CHASING BANDITS OVER AN INCREASING AREA.

American lives, as well as American dollars, are paying the cost.

This is an intolerable situation and the Hoover administration has trifled with it all too long.

Railroads and Buses

Boston & Maine employes join the railroad managers in a fight against the competition of the motorbus.

A generation back the employes of livery stables joined the owners in a struggle to overcome the competition of the railroads against the horse.

The motorbus is here to stay, until it is displaced by some more efficient and economical arm of transportation.

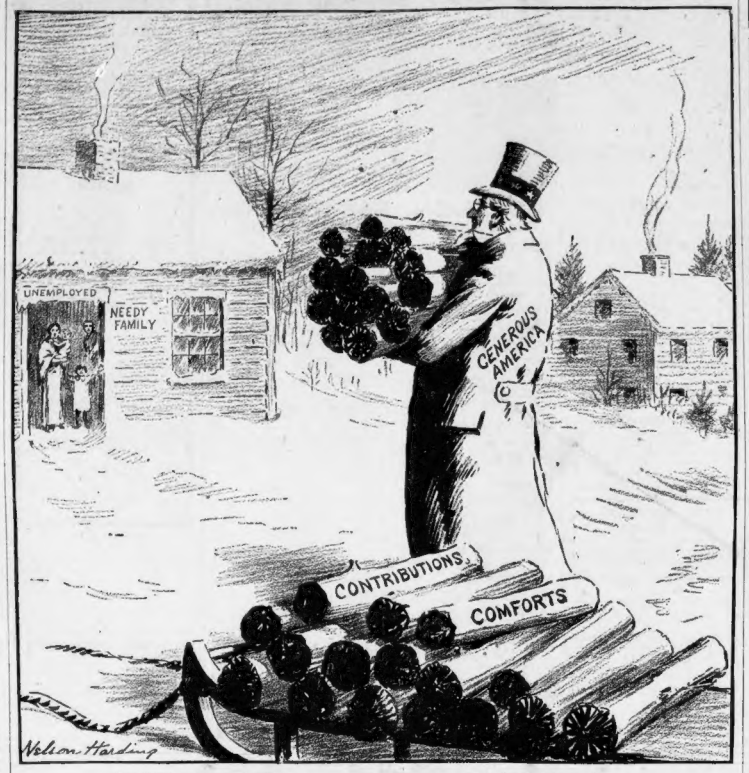
It is supplying an intimate local service which the railroads never could furnish.

The roads have a right to protection from unfair competition and from rate slashing by will o' the wisp bus lines which may spring up overnight and disappear shortly.

But the first duty of the railroads is so to improve their own service that they will remain indispensable in their own field.

'KEEP THE HOME FIRES BURNING'

By NELSON HARDING



Though it is no longer Christmas
Let us keep alive the spirit
That has made us think of others
And induced our Yuletide giving.

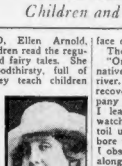
It is for us to remember
That the Winter is not over
With its hardships. That the needy
Still require our assistance.

Listen, World! - Fairy Tales

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Children and Fear

MY FRIEND, Ellen Arnold, won't let her children read the regular editions of old fairy tales. She says they're bloodthirsty, full of horrors—that they teach children fear. The juvenile books in her library are all expurgated. No messy killings. No bad foxes tumbling into a boiling pot. No wolves gobbling up grandmas, nor giants consuming little boys and girls. Ellen says that's the way to prepare children for life and keep them unafraid. Protect them from ugliness. Only let them see lovely sights—



Elsie Robinson

I wonder. Will that really keep children from fear? Or will it put fear into them?

Alicia O'Reardon Overbeck wrote an article in the December Harper's which Ellen should read. It's the story of her attempt at school teaching in a Bolivian mining camp. The native Bolivians are a frank lot, unshackled by our squeamish civilized notions. Why—reason the Bolivians—should children be kept from knowing the facts of life, or death? Such facts are natural phenomena. Children are not born fearing them. They accept them as naturally as they accept blue skies, bright water. Why break down that happy naturalness and teach them fear and false modesty concerning conditions which they must inevitably face?

Such is Bolivian reasoning and practice. And so the Overbeck youngsters—to their mother's frequent but futile consternation—witnessed and discussed the gory details of local cock fights knew when and how Gypsy was to have pups, observed with perfect composure the "wailing drunken" funeral processions of Indians "carrying unsteadily an unpainted wooden coffin from which stared stiffly the waxen face of a man, woman or child."

There was the incident of Jorge—

"Once in the midwinter floods a native boy was carried off by the river. Late in May his body was recovered and brought to our company hospital for identification. As I leaned over the camp wall and watched the eager, excited crowd toil up the hill behind a litter that bore what little was left of the boy, I observed my son stepping briskly along at the side of the doctor. I was aghast and not a little angry. The doctor surely would have sense enough to send the child back. In about half an hour they both returned.

"'It was Jorge!' my son remarked conversationally. 'There wasn't much left of him, but the doctor knew him by his shoes. His legs were just sticks, but the shoes had stuck on.'

"I glared at the doctor and the doctor glared back at me.

"'That's right,' he snapped. 'Start saying "how awful" and "what do you mean by letting my child see a sight like that?" and in two minutes you'll have the kid sniffling and thinking he's seen something horrible. I tell you, teacher, you haven't gone down to principles in this teaching business of yours . . . Teach your children to look clear-eyed at life and death alike, and neither will have so much power to terrify them later. Children aren't naturally afraid of anything. It's only when grownups point out what they ought to be scared of, that they begin to develop fear complexes.'"

Something to think about—yes? I'm remembering when American frontier life was almost as frank and simple as life in the Bolivian mining camp. Expurgate the vital statistics? How could you—with spring lambs aborning in the plaza and all of us kids peeking in the kitchen window at old Pat Mulligan's wake? Snive! in those days and you got smacked. They bred 'em husky—then. I wonder what these modern mothers with their denaturing technique will breed.

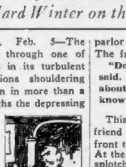
New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Hard Winter on the Bowery

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—The Bowery struggles through one of the worst winters in its turbulent history, its missions shouldering the heaviest burden in more than a decade. For months the depressing headline has been a serpentine coil circling every block.



Only the pawnbrokers prospered in the topsy-turviness that shunted even a few Fifth avenue dwellers to the section. A number of upstairs lodging houses had their quota of beaten who once sat at glass-topped desks commanding their world by push buttons.

Most newcomers to the "submerged tenth" spend their first few weeks in sullen resentment. Misfortune has stunned them and they drop in lodging house chairs inarticulate. Almost all during their novitiate believe suicide offers the only panacea.

But generally in a month they start to take an interest in life again. Like a startled dreamer swimming up from a deep well of sleep, they look about in their new world. Indeed, the lazy tempo of drifting becomes pleasant.

* * *

Every man who remains on the Bowery for a year or so becomes philosophical. He is whetted to adversity. Want becomes casual emotion and nothing matters. Those who have fumed over a fifth row seat at a first night, accept a free flop on a hard floor with a perfect complacence.

Social workers know that the dole is often a necessity, but just the same dangerous. Free coffee and free flops frequently dull self respect, and when that quality is lost the problem of rehabilitation becomes more difficult than ever.

The Bowery is a human barometer that registers acutely depths of depression, but it is the first to register signs of returning prosperity. When the bread line vanishes, smoke from factory chimneys is inevitable. And slowly the breadline is thinning.

* * *

The philosophy of the Bowery is illustrated somewhat by the remark of a friend of Chuck Conners when that worthy passed to his reward. A group of mourners clotted in front of the plus-blobbed undertaking parlor where the body was taken. The friend sauntered up.

"Don't worry about Chuck," he said. "He knows what it is all about. That's more than we know!"

* * *

This is a paragraphic paean for a friend who donned the starched front to attend a dinner and theater. At the dinner a dribble of dark soup splotched his snowy bosom. He excused himself and went home to change. No play is worth changing a stiff shirt.

* * *

Any number of eating places—especially tea rooms—in New York operate hat and cloak rooms without an attendant. A patron leaves his things when entering and picks them up on departure. Most of these places have never had a loss by theft. This careless gesture is inspired by an old police-known fact. A crook seldom visits a respectable, modestly priced cafe. When he deserts "beaneries" for a splurge, he goes to the jazziest and expensive places.

* * *

My only conscious contact with an underworld swell was as a reporter for a New York paper. I accompanied a Central Office man for a surprise roundup in an apartment on West End avenue. The gentleman, in doggy dressing gown, received us in a library-like room. It suggested the opening act of a crook drama. After dispatching a few mysterious telephone calls and habiting himself in street dress, he accompanied his captor coolly. Under a reading lamp was the book he had turned pages down at our ring. It was one of the Elsie Dinsmore books. I stressed this observation in my report but it was blue pencilled. "No reader will believe that," said the city editor.

* * *

In that day—the late '90's—New York was in full gestation of poisoned needle mysteries. I was a misguided solecist who classed it all as "bunk"—a rising new word in the lexicon. Then one evening on an Amsterdam avenue summer car I felt a stinging jab. "I've got me!" I whispered to my wife. And reeled off the car into a nearby drugstore. It developed I had leaned against the sharp prong of a pantsbuckle.

Words of the Wise Men

A proverb is the wit of one and the wisdom of many. —Russell.

He travels safe, and not unpleasantly, who is guarded by poverty and guided by love. —Sydney.

The anger of an enemy represents our faults or admonishes us of our duty with more heartiness than the kindness of a friend. —Taylor.

The world is seldom what it seems;
To man, who dimly sees,
Realities appear as dreams,
And dreams realities.

Russia in the North

An Interesting Picture of Mother Love

ON A RUSSIAN ICE-BREAKER

This interesting picture shows a man looking out from the bow of a Russian ice-breaker, the Georgi Sedow, breaking a path through the thick ice of the Far North.

The mother love referred to in the heading above is not Russian but Polar bearish. The lookout, on the powerful ice-breaker crashing through the thick floes, sees ahead of him a huge mother Polar bear, her cub trudging along behind her. The noise of the crashing ice is frightening, the strange figure of the big ship appalling.

But the mother goes her even gait. She will not go faster than the cub can follow.

If the end of this story could be told, it might show the mother and cub bleeding on the ice, each with a bullet in its head, the two made later into a large and a small Polar bear skin rug.

What interests us here is the picture of mother love that is the same all over the earth.

On the Equator, a mother elephant or gorilla, will sacrifice life without hesitation for its young. And here in the frozen North it is the same. The father of that cub might run and probably would, if outmatched.

But the mother would fight to the death. Nothing else interests her where the welfare of the cub is concerned.

You are interested also in the enterprise shown by the Russian Government in sending out the great ice-breaking ship under Professor Otto Schmidt, making the trip from Archangel to Francis Joseph Land, exploring shores hitherto unknown, in the Kara Sea.

The modern Russian Government is perhaps misjudged by us in America. We speak of it generally as a lot of "Communists and Anarchists," talking wild theories in Moscow. The fact is that Russia is building up a gigantic industrial program. The most magnificent machinery made in the United States goes to Russia. And the Russians somehow or other pay for it, AND IN GOLD, and they hire our best engineers.

The present Russian Government is in many ways like the most powerful Russian governments in the past, especially like that of Peter the Great, who made Russia a modern nation, importing scientists from Western Europe, sending them to develop gold mines and other mines in far-off places, building a great navy.

All that Peter the Great did, and more than he ever dreamed of doing, the present Russian Government is at least attempting.

It has no upper class expenses, none of the horrible waste of the Czars and Grand Dukes, and it may go farther than its enemies imagine.

Returning to the mother bear and her cub, there is something in that sight in the Far North to make any man thoughtful, especially the man who believes that in this world everything is accidental.

It was not any "fortuitous concourse of atoms" that created the affection that fills the heart of every mother.

Something far beyond the rushing atom, molecule or electron must explain that.

Andrew Jackson's Hair

Worth $20

Andrew Jackson had a fine mop of hair. It swept back from his forehead. With his resolute features and dauntless bearing, it made him look something like a lion.

These facts are not recited here, however, as a matter of historical interest. Jackson's portrait is on the front of the $20 bill. This bill is being cleverly counterfeited, and according to the Treasury Department, many are believed to be in circulation.

You can detect the counterfeit by looking at Jackson's hair. The counterfeiters didn't do justice to Old Hickory. They have thinned out his mane. Many of the hairs that ought to be there are missing.

The information is of no importance to those of us who haven't seen a twenty-dollar bill for so long that even a counterfeit would look good. But for those who have, the news is passed on. Watch Andy's hair. It's worth money.
